Prisoner-Lawyer Thanks
Jurors for Attention;
Will File Appeal in Few Days.

Riverside, Calif., February 7.—(AP)—A jury which had been deliberating the fate of Gordon Stewart Northcott, charged with the killing of three youths at his Wineville ranch, returned a verdict of murder in the first degree tonight after it had been out three hours. The verdict carried with it the death penalty.

The juryman found Northcott guilty as charged in the indictment on all three counts against him—the slaying of Nelson Winslow, of Lewis Winslow and an unidentified Mexican boy.

Judge George R. Freeman asked Northcott if he wished to poll the jury. "A poll is entirely unnecessary, your honor," Northcott said, rising calmly to his feet and speaking in an unquivering voice.

Retains Iron Control.
"I wish to thank the jury," he said a moment later, "for the attention it has given me."

The young Canadian's iron control amazed deputy sheriffs who had massed around him. He called McKinley Cameron, Canadian barrister, to him and asked: "How did I conduct myself," he asked.

Judge Freeman set Monday at 10 a. m. for sentence. It is understood Northcott will file an appeal.

Investigation of murders alleged to have been committed by Northcott was started September 14, 1928, when Sanford Clark, the 22-year-old Canadian's nephew, told a story of grave digging and slaying on the isolated chicken ranch. Clark asserted he had been kept for two years a virtual prisoner.

Northcott and Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, then supposed to be his mother, but now asserted by both to be his grandmother, fled to Canada. Mrs. Northcott, too, having been implicated in the murders.

Says Case Preposterous.
Prosecutor Redwine frequently leveled an accusing finger at Northcott during his address.

"He stands before you, gentlemen, and lies in his argument just as he lied in his testimony," the prosecutor cried. "A degenerate, a moral pervert, the champion pathological liar of the United States."

Northcott wound up his own argument before the jury late today with, "I leave my life in your hands." Northcott told the jury, "It is impossible to do the things they have charged to me, a person would have to be a maniac, and I believe I am sane."

"I'm fighting—fighting all alone for my life," he told the jury. He referred to Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, who testified she was his grandmother, in San Quentin prison for the confessed murder of 9-year-old Walter Collins.

"Not only am I fighting for my life," he said, "I'm fighting also so that I may be free—free to fight again for that little woman up in San Quentin."

He referred to the story of Sanford Clark, his supposed nephew, who was the state's star witness.

"It is almost beyond human understanding that any person should do the things that he has accused me of doing," Northcott said.

AFTER AGREEMENT
BY CHURCH, STATE

Voluntary Imprisonment
on Vatican Grounds
Started in 1870 After 20
Years of Strife.

Rome, February 7.—(United News.)—Settlement of the long-standing dispute between the Catholic church and the Italian government over fall of the pope's temporal power in 1870 was received tonight as one of the outstanding diplomatic accomplishments of modern history as a result of formal announcement of the accord which has aroused worldwide interest within the last few weeks.

Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, announced this morning, at a brief meeting of diplomatic representatives at the Vatican, that an agreement had been reached between the holy see and the government.

The Roman question settlement restores temporal power to the pope after more than 58 years and ends the voluntary imprisonment of the pope in the Vatican grounds, an imprisonment which started in 1870 when the troops of Victor Emmanuel entered the city of Rome and the Italian kingdom was secretly established. For 20 years previous to that date the position of the Vatican had been threatened and unsatisfactory.

Cardinal Gasparri and Premier Mussolini met for the first time at the Lateran palace to sign the accord.

Explains Form of Accord.
The announcement was not amplified by the papal secretary except that he explained the form of the accord.

An agreement between Italy and the holy see had been reached, he told the diplomats of 25 nations who had assembled in the rich red hall at the Vatican palace. "It will be considered with first, a treaty of reconciliation; second, with a concordat."

Contrary to early reports, the pope has denounced all territorial demands, accepting only slight additions to the palaces and holy office with the other buildings and the city of St. Peter's. There are virtually no residences within the new bounds of the Vatican, which will cover only a half-mile square area, including the gardens of the Vatican, the palaces and St. Peter's.

The government further renounced all right to interfere with the appointment of priests, leaving the matter entirely within jurisdiction of the church. Thus, the present Italian regulation requiring the bishop to obtain state approval and the priest to obtain a government placet is completely abolished.

Will Send Note.
Within the next few days Pope Pius XI will send a note to the world powers explaining the terms of the agreement, either through the diplomatic representatives here or through the papal nuncios at the various capitals.

The two documents consummating the settlement consist of a treaty of reconciliation, which grants the pope nominal sovereignty over a territory which will be slightly greater than the present Vatican limits; and a concordat, which treats with the religious questions involved, including the financial and economic position of the bishops in Italy. This concordat deals especially with the relations of the clergy and general ecclesiastical affairs to the Italian government.

It includes references to the methods of appointing bishops and their status as well as provisions for governmental remuneration for priests. At present priests receive stipends from the state, but the concordat will formulate this as established between the holy see and the government, establishing the church's position in Italy by law.

It was pointed out tonight that the concordat will embody comprehensive

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Washington, February 7.—(Special.)—Preparatory to the forthcoming special session of congress which President-elect Hoover is expected to call for the purpose of considering national farm problems, officials of the American Cotton association today presented to congressional leaders a comprehensive legislative program for the relief of the cotton industry.

The program, setting forth seven definite legislative planks which are urged for adoption, was presented after a conference here earlier in the day by officials of the association. It was signed by J. C. Wannamaker, of St. Matthews, S. C., president of the cotton organization; J. D. Thompson, of Kohn, Ala., vice president, and Colonel Harvie Jordan, of Greenville, S. C., managing director.

Republican leaders of the house and senate, including the chairman of the two agricultural committees, were requested to study the proposals and bear them in mind when the time comes for drafting a general bill for the relief of American agriculture. Foremost in the program was a recommendation that the federal government accept the largest amount of not less than $100,000,000 for the use of cotton growers in retiring the estimated temporary surplus of cotton.

SEEK NEW PARLEY
ON HUGE DRY FUND

Congressional Leaders
Hope To Save Deficiency Appropriation Bill by Renewal of Conferences.

Washington, February 7.—(AP)—Still hoping to save the deficiency appropriation bill, congressional leaders were seeking tonight to bring about a renewal of conferences between the senate and house on the $24,000,000 prohibition increase which has balked solution so far.

After Chairman Warren, of the senate appropriations committee, informed the senate today of the deadlock over the increase in dry funds voted by the senate, sponsor of the proposal, gave notice he would add the prohibition item to the next deficiency bill to come along if this measure failed. Hopes for conference were held out tonight in some quarters.

An apparent agreement was in sight on the proposal of Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, for open hearings on negotiations for all refunds of more than $10,000. This amendment was added to the bill, but Secretary Mellon, as in the case of the dry fund, wrote a letter of protest. The bill provides $75,000,000 for tax refunds. The tax letter was read today to the senate and later McKellar said he would consent to amendment of his proposition to allow for one public hearing on refunds.

"No tax refund claim," wrote the secretary, "is allowed as a result of the action of one or two individuals. On the contrary every claim has to run the gauntlet of thorough and complete audits, examinations and legal review by a staff of competent men, certain of them especially chosen and trained for this work. It is my opinion that this system completely and adequately protects the government's interests."

"It is misleading to speak of the present procedure as a secret one. Conferences between the only persons who have any real interest in the matter should not be called secret simply because the idly curious are not privileged to be present, or because the procedure does not permit the divulgence of facts of interest only to the taxpayer and the government, or because it does not authorize the presence of tax experts seeking information of interest to possible prospective clients, or to competitors of the taxpayer. There is a real purpose accomplished by the provisions of the act forbidding such disclosures."

"While certain large corporations may publish from time to time their balance sheets, there are many small taxpayers, particularly new and struggling corporations, whose business could be ruined, for the disclosure of their financial position would frequently encourage unfair business practices designed to eliminate them from the field and possibly permit competitors to take advantage of perhaps a temporarily weak condition. In addition, it would reveal secret formulas, secret trade processes, and vital statistics, such as costs of production."

Entire Industry Should Blush at Stewart's Fi-

BY KENNETH G. CRAWFORD.
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, February 7.—(United News.)—A new aspect of the contest between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Robert W. Stewart for control of the Standard Oil company of Indiana—the enormous profits of the concern under Stewart's management—was pointed out in the senate today by Senator George Norris, Nebraska Republican.

"Stewart boasts in his literature soliciting reelection as chairman of the board that Standard Oil of Indiana has increased in value from $170,000,000 to $200,000,000 despite the payment of $200,000,000 in dividends during the last ten years," Norris said.

"Does the leading oil company of the world want to go before this country with that kind of a record? Every diver owner in the United States has contributed to that unconscionable profit. Anyone who wants the respect of honest people must not approve such extortion."

Norris criticized Rockefeller for failing to denounce the financial record revealed by Stewart's figures. As the teacher of a Sabbath school class, Rockefeller should feel pang, "I repeat what I have said before: I am not a man unfit to run any honest concern."

Commends Rockefeller.
"Rockefeller is to be commended for seeking to oust Stewart," Norris continued, "but he does not go far enough. So far as I know, he has not approached Stewart for making too much money during Stewart's leadership in the Standard Oil company."

It was the second time Norris has taken a hand in Stewart's attempt to secure reelection to chairmanship of the company's board over the protest of Rockefeller, the largest although not the majority stockholder.

"If Stewart had been an ordinary worker in the streets of Washington, I would have been on his way to jail 20 minutes after the jury was impaneled," Norris said, referring to Stewart's trial for contempt of the senate and later for perjury. "I repeat what I have said before: I am not a man unfit to run any honest concern."

Norris reviewed again the history of the Continental Trading company deal in which Stewart was involved. It was his part in this transaction that led to Stewart's testimony and refusal to answer certain questions before a senate investigating committee. His two trials on a charge preferred by the senate and finally his present controversy with Rockefeller.

Norris related how Stewart along with Stewart Blackmer, James E. O'Neil and Harry Sinclair organized the Continental Trading company to purchase 30,000,000 barrels of oil at $1.50 a barrel back to the company. They represented for $1.75; how the profits were converted into Liberty bonds, part of which were given to former Secretary of Interior Fall and the remainder to the republican national committee, and how Stewart turned his share over to his company after a delay of six years.

Kept Share in Safe.
"Stewart kept his share of the profits in a safe," Norris said, "and notified his company of their existence and didn't give them up until he was driven into a corner by a senate committee. He never explained the existence and didn't give them up until he was driven into a corner by a senate committee. He never explained the existence and didn't give them up until he was driven into a corner by a senate committee."

HOUSE ADVERSES
CYANAMID OFFER
FOR SHOALS SITE

By Vote of 10 to 9 Committee Kills Bill; Lester Hill Asks Report Without Comment.

Washington, February 7.—(AP)—By a vote of 10 to 9, the house military committee today rejected a motion to report the Madden bill proposing a lease of the government's Muscle Shoals properties to the American Cyanamid company for fertilizer production. The specific motion before the committee was to report the measure without recommendation to the house.

The vote as first announced was 10 to 8 but later the proxy of an absent member was submitted in favor of reporting the bill, making the ballot 10 to 9.

The committee's action today was taken after hearings on a revised bill submitted by the Cyanamid company. A year ago the committee turned down an offer by the company on the ground that the recapture provisions were not satisfactory. The revised offer contained what was described as more advantageous recapture provisions from the government's standpoint.

Representative Hill, democrat, Alabama, offered the motion to report the bill without recommendation.

W. B. Bell, president of the company, was recalled to the stand today and gave the committee for the second time his interpretation of the terms of the proposed contract.

He reiterated that the government would have been free to ignore the recapture options, and still have been able to collect rent and interest from the company. However, he said, if the government failed to complete the dam, it would not have been able to exercise the recapture options.

He also said that his company would have been liable for forfeiture of the plant if it had failed to produce the stipulated 20,000 tons of nitrogen annually.

Alfred A. Wheat, a special assistant to the chief of engineers, told the committee that he had found the bill constitutional and legal in all respects but one.

He pointed to the clause that would permit the United States circuit court of the northern district of Alabama to name an arbitrator to act in any case of dispute. This, he said, was not part of the duties of a court and might be construed as an illegal procedure.

HOUSE SENDS NAVY
BILL TO COOLIDGE

Measure Designed To Strengthen Coast Defense Carries Without Record Vote.

Washington, February 7.—(AP)—Without a record vote the house today accepted senate amendments to the naval construction bill and sent the measure to the white house.

The bill proposes strengthening the nation's sea fighting forces by 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier and stipulates that work must be started on all the vessels by July 1, 1931. President Coolidge had urged elimination of this requirement, but congress refused to accede to his views.

Mr. Coolidge has indicated his displeasure over retention of this provision, but at the same time has been represented as feeling that this did not necessarily imply he would veto the legislation. A number of senators and house members today freely predicted he would approve the measure.

The building program, submitted to congress more than a year ago, is the last of the major administration measures before congress and its disposition today clears the calendars of all big legislative proposals with the exception of several of the annual batch of supply measures.

The action on the naval program was taken by the house a few minutes after it convened at noon. Chairman Britten, of the naval committee, called the measure up and asked unanimous consent for concurrence in amendments adopted by the senate. The major revision being the Borah-Reed proposal calling for an international agreement upon the raising of neutrals at sea during war time.

Representative Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, however, objected to the measure and the committee chairman then offered a motion that the house accept the senate changes. This was done in short order after a proposal by Huddleston had been rejected.

The Alabamian sought incorporation in the bill of a provision to give the president the authority to suspend any or all of the proposed construction

First Atlanta Marshal
Dies Here at Age of 91

CAME TO CITY WHEN IT WAS MARTHASVILLE

Captain Edwin C. Murphy, 91, first city marshal of Atlanta and a resident of the city from the time it was known as Marthasville, died Thursday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. India Murphy Craig, 623 Pace avenue, following an illness of only a week.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, Captain Murphy at the age of two years came with his parents to America and soon after they arrived in the new country, they moved to Atlanta, then a small community known as Marthasville.

When the name was changed to Atlanta, Captain Murphy was elected city marshal, a post he held for a number of years, continuing through the war between the states.

Following his service as marshal of the city, Captain Murphy became chief in the Atlanta district federal court, a post he occupied for more than 20 years.

Besides his daughter, he leaves a number of nephews and nieces in Atlanta. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CARNES TO LEAVE FOR PRISON SOON

Services Not Needed by
Baptists, Ex-Treasurer
May Be Taken to State
Farm Today.

The services of Clinton S. Carnes in helping untangle the jumbled accounts are not required by the officers of the Southern Baptist home mission board, where, as treasurer, he is alleged to have stolen almost a million dollars in the last 10 years, it was said at the board's office Thursday.

Carnes, under sentence of from five to seven years in the penitentiary on his plea of guilty in connection with thefts from the mission board treasury, will leave the Fulton Tower today or Saturday for the state prison farm at Milledgeville, where he will serve his sentence. County officials at the Tower were holding Carnes there in case the mission board would him to help straighten out the books he kept for the board.

In Auditors' Hands.
"The Carnes accounts are in the hands of the best auditors the mission board could find," an administrative executive of the board said. "We know it will take these auditors a long time to untangle the mess, but we are confident this company soon will get our accounts in good condition."

Carnes will serve his term at the prison farm instead of at one of the various camps over the state, an official announcement from the state commission said Thursday. The announcement set at rest rumor regarding the place where the sentence imposed Tuesday by Judge Virlyn B. Moore would be executed.

Statement by Dr. Christie.
The following statement by Dr. Luther Rice Christie, president of the mission board, addressed to Baptist preachers all over the south, was issued Thursday at the mission board's office:

"The press has already carried to the public the story of the disposition of the criminal case against C. S. Carnes, former treasurer of the home mission board. It seems proper that, as president of the board, I should supplement this with a statement to our own people."

"The naked announcement of the sentence, as passed by the court, will not seem to our people at all in keeping with the enormity of the crime, and there will be very natural wonder that consent should have been given to so short a prison term. Even if we had unlimited time and opportunity, it is not certain that we should be able to make explanations altogether satisfactory, so I very much prefer to make a simple statement of facts and let these facts speak for themselves."

Acted for Board.
"The board placed unusual confidence in, and responsibility upon me in giving me plenary power to act for them in the criminal proceedings. I was to act in cooperation with the attorneys for the board and the prosecuting officers of the court. This was done at the instance of our attorneys, Mr. W. W. Gaines and Judge Arthur G. Power, because it was evident that the very nature of the circumstances required that somebody be charged with this responsibility. It was not the sort of position one would seek, because it was reasonable to expect that there might be required prompt and important decisions, which would not be universally satisfactory, no matter how made. I reminded the board of this when they asked me to assume the responsibility and assured them that if the charge was committed to me I would use my own best judgment and assume full responsibility for my conduct. Just as I anticipated, there came a time when I had to make a decision, and had to make it promptly. I used the very best judgment I had and as I reflect upon the situation even to this day, I am now all the more convinced that my judgment in the matter was not unsound. At any rate, it is my own."

Embarrassing Case.
"First, this has been one of the most difficult and embarrassing cases in the history of our criminal courts in Georgia. It is not possible for one not intimately connected with the inside of the situation even to guess at the mass of complexities involved in it. We have had one of the most capable and resourceful auditing firms in America working diligently at this affair for five months and more, and

ALABAMA VIADUCT NEED IS STRESSED

Advocating construction of the proposed Alabama street viaduct, extending from Forsyth street to Haynes street, across the Spring street bridge, Mayor I. N. Ragsdale and Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, Thursday pointed out the necessity of the structure as a relief of downtown traffic in offering a new traffic artery extending to the west and south.

In addition to the importance of the bridge as a traffic boulevard which would relieve materially congestion in the downtown area, it also would furnish a means of ingress and egress to a section of the city long neglected, the officials said.

Finances Only Question.
"There can be no argument against adding the bridge to those already constructed or now under construction," Mr. Ragsdale said. "The only question is one of finances. When the way is clear for the bond issue projects to be made up, this project, in my opinion, should get serious consideration."

"It would be the dawn of a new era of development in the area affected and would be such a relief to traffic as to be one of the main thoroughfares in that section of the city."

"The proposed structure should ultimately be connected with another bridge extending from the Central avenue viaduct to the Washington street viaduct, thus giving a direct connection with the northern and eastern sections of the city."

Donaldson Enthusiastic.
Mr. Donaldson outlined the project with an enthusiastic endorsement, stating that the area in which it is proposed to place the structure comprises some of the city's most valuable property, which has been neglected in so far as improvements are concerned for many years.

"The time has come when this project merits the attention of the city fathers in improvements, even if the traffic artery were not needed to relieve congestion," he declared.

"This project to my mind is one of the worst needed in the city because of its strategic position. It seems to me to be the key to solution of congestion in a part of the city which must have relief."

"At the present time traffic is forced to enter that section which lies south and west of the Spring street viaduct either via Mangum or Marietta streets. The whole area embraced between these streets thus is hampered because of its inaccessibility. Construction of the new bridge would open up a new traffic lane and provide facilities now denied those holding property in that section."

Steps Must Be Taken.
"The time is not far off when Atlanta must take steps to construct a bridge to the south of the Terminal station and running parallel with Spring street. This could connect over the proposed Forsyth to Haynes street bridge over the Spring street viaduct and would further relieve congestion, at the same time providing another artery to draw some of the congestion from Spring street."

"My unqualified endorsement has been given the proposition because of its importance."

This did the mayor and Mr. Donaldson join Alderman Robert E. Pennington and Councilmen Sam Wardlaw and H. Turner Leach, comprising the first ward delegation in city council in approving and urging the improvement. It has been hailed as one of the most needed and deserving projects thus far advocated from the proposed bond issue which is expected to be placed before voters of the city in the referendum in March.

New York, February 7.—(AP)—Two billion dollars, or more, in quoted values were wiped out today in a sweeping reaction on the New York Stock exchange caused by the federal reserve board's ultimatum that speculative credit must be restrained and by the increase from 4-1/2 to 5-1/2 per cent in the Bank of England's discount rate, checking the flow of gold from London to New York.

Blocks of 5,000 to 20,000 shares were dumped into the market at the opening with the result that initial declines in the active issues ranged from $3 to $17 a share. A recovery ensued before noon, but it failed to hold and the market turned weak again in the last hour, with at least 50 issues closing at net declines of $5 to $35 a share.

Trading started off at a brisk pace, sales in the first two hours running above 2,500,000 shares, but it slowed down later. The day's sales were 5,211,000 shares as contrasted with the record-breaking total of nearly 7,000,000 shares on November 23 last.

Governors of the exchange voted today to close the exchange on Saturday in order to afford relief to the personnel of member houses from the effects of sickness caused by the epidemic of influenza during recent months. Similar action was taken by the New York curb market.

Official announcement also was made today that the proposed 25 per cent increase in membership, adding 275 to the present total of 1,100, had been approved.

Federal reserve brokers' loans, the mounting total of which inspired the reserve board's warning, announced after the close of the market, showed an increase of $110,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, bringing the total to another new high record at $2,650,000,000. This compares with a total of $2,335,000,000 a year ago.

Directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank announced no change in the 5 per cent discount rate, which has been in effect since July 13, 1928. Retention of the 5 per cent federal reserve discount rate was regarded by bankers as a desire on the part of federal reserve authorities to await the market's response to the 12-1/2 warning before taking any further action to restrict credit. Some uneasiness was created, however, by the announcement.

23 MEMBERS ADDED IN JAYCEE CAMPAIGN

Total Announced at 'Steeplechase' Luncheon as Drive Opens.

A total of 23 new members was reported Thursday at the "steeplechase" luncheon of the Junior Chamber of Commerce which inaugurated a membership drive to be extended throughout the year. The present membership has been divided into teams with each team represented by a horse in the "great Jaycee steeplechase." Each new member brought in by the various teams advances their horse a little nearer the goal.

Ed Robertson, chairman of the drive committee, presided at the Thursday luncheon, which was featured by short talks by Theodore Oser, O. Lee White, Slater Marshall, Gilbert Withers and J. D. Robinson, members of the drive committee, which also includes Lee Fowler and Dr. R. W. Tharp.

Approximately 150 were present at the luncheon and the first 100 to arrive were presented with handsome souvenirs in the form of playing cards, note books, cigarettes and similar articles.

Entertainment for the occasion was provided by Miss Dixie Duncan, lilies star, in several specialty dances, vocal selections by Bob L. Forsans, accompanied by Miss Martha Millhouse, and solos by Miss Elaine, lyric soprano, accompanied by Miss Birdie Eisenberg, concert pianist.

CONCRETE STREET CLASS WILL HEAR TALK BY BARKER

The second of two classes in the design and construction of concrete streets will be held tonight in the physics laboratory at Georgia Tech from 7:30 until 10:30 o'clock. W. E. Barker, of the highway bureau of the Portland Cement association, of Chicago, is conducting the classes, which were arranged by Professors F. C. Snow and J. H. Lucas.

The first class, held Thursday night, was concerned with the design of the streets while tonight's session is to take up the more important phases of construction. These classes are being offered primarily for engineers engaged in municipal work but also are being taken by men interested in state and county work.

The entire program is being arranged by the junior members.

Thursday was marked by educational sessions in the morning and visits in the afternoon to the local veterans' bureau, the Atlanta headquarters of the Red Cross and various home hygiene classes.

Nearly 50 persons, including workers from South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia are attending the sessions which are to continue through Saturday.

BOOTLE TAKES OATH FOR GEORGIA OFFICE

Macon, Ga., February 7.—(P)—H. R. Bootle took the oath of office today as United States attorney for the middle district of Georgia. He succeeds Scott Russell, who resigned January 1.

Mr. Bootle, who is 26 years old, was nominated several weeks ago by President Coolidge and confirmation was held up by the senate pending investigation of charges by a faction of the republican party led by Fred Flinders that he was unfit for the office on account of his age.

The youthful attorney served as assistant district attorney since April, 1922.

Overcast Skies, But Little Rain On Slate Today

"Increasing cloudiness," if possible, is the weather outlook for Atlanta today, according to the official forecast of C. F. von Herrmann, local bureau chief, who says that a little sunshine will be thrown in on the side and that no precipitation is anticipated for the immediate future. A slight drop in temperature is on schedule, but no freezing weather is expected.

Contrary to general expectations, and much to the delight of most of Atlanta's population, Old Sol came out of his seemingly permanent retirement Thursday for a short time and gave positive evidence that he was still on the job even if endless banks of clouds had obscured his rays for most of the current month. His valiant efforts to burst forth will continue today, Mr. Von Herrmann states.

The Washington forecast Thursday stated that a barometric depression that was formerly in the east gulf section, had moved northward to the vicinity of New York carrying heavy rains and some snow to the eastern states. Severe cold persists in the north, with zero temperature extending southward into Kansas and Colorado. Sheridan, Wyo., reported a minimum of 32 below.

Reports from southeastern states showed minimums Thursday of 34 at Louisville and Augusta, 32 at Macon, 42 at Savannah, 38 at Tampa and 64 at Miami. The temperature here ranged from 40 to 49, and a range from 35 to 50 is expected today.

Canton, Ohio, Man Named Treasurer, Succeeding Buckley

Columbus, Ohio, February 7.—(P)—H. Ross Ake, Canton, was appointed treasurer of state today by Governor Myers Y. Cooper to succeed Bert B. Buckley, who resigned under fire Tuesday, following his conviction in federal court on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and attempted bribery.

RUTH MYSTERY CHILD SUIT IS DEFEATED

Effort Made to Identify Dorothy as Daughter of Pearl Odell.

Rochester, N. Y., February 7.—(P)—An effort to establish claims that Babe Ruth's "mystery child" is the prison-born daughter of Mrs. Pearl Odell has been defeated in supreme court.

Basing their petition on similarity of pictures of Dorothy Helen Ruth and the late Mrs. Ruth, the latter referred to Dorothy Helen as "Marie Harrington" in her will, George R. Arnold and his wife sought a writ of certiorari to vacate the decision of the Appellate Division of the New York state court, dated September 13, 1922, in Mrs. Odell's case.

The couple represented themselves as step-grandparents of the child, Justice Edwin Smith denied the writ on the ground that they had no legal standing in the case regarding the guardianship of the child.

Mrs. Odell is serving a sentence of 20 years to life for complicity with her husband, James, in the murder of Edward Kneip eight years ago. The husband was convicted of murder in the first degree and executed.

Under the law the child born in prison was kept with its mother two years then placed out for adoption. The Arnolds in an affidavit declared that Ruth child is Mildred Glorie Odell.

The fact that the child known as Dorothy Helen Ruth was a foster child of the Ruths was disclosed in Mrs. Ruth's will under which an estate estimated at $50,000 was left for her, but the document gave no hint to the James, who, if the child, merely saying, "My beloved charge and ward, at one time known as Marie Harrington."

In their affidavit the Arnolds said Harrington is the name of Mrs. Odell's sister.

RADE REFUSES TO MAKE STATEMENT

St. Petersburg, Fla., February 7.—(P)—Babe Ruth clearly indicated his attitude toward the court action in Rochester, N. Y., seeking to show that Dorothy Helen Ruth is the daughter of a woman who is serving a prison term, by making a sweeping statement here today in which he declared that "my family affairs have been continually misrepresented."

Including many rumors which have been current since the publication of Mrs. Ruth's will, which revealed that Dorothy Helen was an adopted daughter, the statement covers many phases of a case which culminated in today's supreme court decision.

The signed statement follows: "My family affairs have been continually misrepresented and I do not wish to enter the controversy. This is my final statement on the matter." (Signed) "BABE RUTH."

Ruth has been hounded by reporters here for several days, one reporter following him from New York in an effort to obtain information regarding Dorothy Helen and the Bambino's future. He has continually declared that he had nothing at all to say, but today he spoke in defense of his daughter and made a request that his family affairs be held in the "same respect that is accorded other husbands in time of bereavement."

REPORT EXPECTED ON SECOND BAPTIST PASTOR ON FEB. 24

The committee appointed to call a new pastor to the Second Baptist church is expected to report Sunday morning, February 24, to the congregation on the progress made toward calling a successor to the Rev. Carter Helm Jones, who recently moved to New Orleans. Colonel E. J. Paxon is chairman of the committee.

Fred W. Patterson, chairman of the executive committee, who was recommended by the board of deacons for a place on the board to succeed Ernest F. Brown, was elected at the Wednesday night conference at the church. J. S. McCullough, church clerk, said that Mr. Patterson's election completes the board of 36 deacons, 12 of whom are elected each year.

Robert E. Harvey was elected treasurer of the church, succeeding K. E. Bloodworth, who resigned.

Mrs. John R. Dickey reported that the members of the Women's Missionary and Benevolent society have paid their apportionment of $8,000 for missions, plus $611.34.

Dr. Edwin M. Potrat, supply pastor, presided at the business session Wednesday night and made a talk on "Business Men and City Officials."

HUGE WATER PUMP IS PUT INTO USE AT CITY STATION

A huge new pump, capable of supplying the entire city with water in an emergency, Thursday was thrown into action at the city waterworks by W. Zode Smith, general manager of the waterworks, and Alderman Claude L. Ashley, chairman of the water committee of city council.

The new unit, installed at a cost of about $76,000, has a total capacity of about 40,000,000 gallons daily while the average daily consumption of the city is only about 30,000,000 gallons. The total capacity of all pumps at the station now is about 140,000,000 gallons daily and this is divided so that adequate reserve pumpage is maintained at all times to safeguard against any possible breakdown of the plant.

Two 500-horsepower steam boilers to supply power for the pump will be installed at the station in the near future and these will complete Atlanta's system of safeguards against a possible water shortage, one of the most feared contingencies in a large municipality's existence.

TWO WILL GET MEDAL

Secretary Wilbur Names Two for Life Saving Honor.

Washington, February 7.—(P)—Secretary Wilbur has recommended to Secretary Mellon that silver life-saving medals be awarded to Thomas J. Kirkland, Jr., of Camden, S. C., former lieutenant in the navy, and to Ensign Daniel B. Miller, also of Camden, now attached to the airplane carrier Saratoga.

Kirkland saved Otis M. Sloan from drowning when their plane fell into Newport harbor, R. I., July 27 last year. A fellow officer from Saratoga was caught in an undertow while swimming and was being carried out to sea when Miller went to his aid and brought him ashore. A few minutes later Miller saw a young woman in distress and swam to her assistance, bringing her ashore unconscious.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

George To Seek Immediate Action on Vinson Measure Stopping Cotton Gambling

Will Place Bill Before Senate as Substitute for Caraway Plan; Asks Quick Consideration.

Washington, February 7.—(By Staff Correspondent.)—Plans were revealed tonight whereby Senator George, of Georgia, will introduce a parliamentary coup in the upper chamber tomorrow to design to bring about final action on the pending Vinson bill already passed by the house, which provides stringent federal regulation of the New York Cotton Exchange.

The Georgia senator, it was disclosed, will offer the Vinson measure as a substitute for the bill sponsored by Senator T. H. Caraway, of Arkansas, prohibiting future trading in cotton for speculative purposes on the New York exchange. He was prompted to undertake the maneuver by the action of Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, in declining press for consideration companion legislation to the Vinson bill which he (the South Carolina senator) offered in the upper house and which has been favorably reported by the senate agricultural committee.

The bill to regulate the New York Cotton Exchange was sponsored in the house by Representative Caraway, of Georgia. It imposes the same strict federal regulatory provisions as now apply to the wheat pit of the Chicago board of trade, one of its most important provisions calls for the designation of southern points of delivery, or cities where cotton may be traded for delivery on future trading. Two Georgia cities are so designated in the measure, Savannah and Augusta.

After passage of the Vinson bill was effected in the house, Senator Smith, much to the surprise of those who had worked with him on the legislation, announced that he would seek to have his companion measure approved in the upper chamber, giving as his reasons the fact that the New York exchange had sought voluntarily to put into practice the major reforms contemplated.

It develops, however, that this was unsatisfactory to the Georgia congressman with the result that Senator George was persuaded to lead the coup which will be undertaken.

The Georgia senator himself could not be reached tonight for comment on his plans, but Representative Vinson confirmed the information that he would offer the latter's bill as a substitute for the Caraway measure. Mr. Vinson, "has consented to lead the fight for an adoption of my bill to regulate the cotton exchange, and to this end he will seek to have it substantiated for the Caraway bill when it comes up, under the calendar Friday. We are hopeful of success and have already been assured of generous support, particularly among southern senators."

The bill by Senator Caraway was recently reported by the senate committee and has been placed on the legislative calendar for consideration tomorrow. He proposed to make it unlawful for a person to send any message offering to enter into a contract for the purchase or sale, or future delivery of cotton or grain without intending that such cotton or grain shall be actually delivered or received.

Transmission of such messages would be considered interference with interstate commerce and would be punishable by fines ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 or imprisonment. A person sending a message dealing with such contracts for future delivery would be required to file an affidavit with the telegraph or telephone company, stating that he is the owner of the grain or cotton in question and that he intends to make actual delivery. Both the person sending prohibited messages and companies transmitting them would be liable to prosecution, and printed matter tending to promote dealing in futures would be non-mailable.

Senator Caraway's measures does not attempt to prohibit a farmer from selling crops which he expects to make later on in the season, and thus would not prevent grain or cotton mills from providing for future supplies of farm materials. The farmer could sell his crop for delivery at maturity and this contract could be resold. But it would be unlawful for a person to sell grain which he did not intend to deliver. In short, it is aimed at the speculators who grow rich by gambling in more or less mythical contracts affecting farm products.

The Vinson measure contemplates the general forms sought by the Caraway bill, but seems doomed to failure this session due to the refusal of Senator Smith to press for action. Both Georgia members, in laying their strategic plans for Friday, are convinced that this offers the only course for securing a vote this session.

Special Automobile To Remove King To Home by Sea

London, February 7.—(AP)—King George's removal to the south coast of England is expected shortly, his majesty having made enough progress to warrant that move.

An official bulletin signed by five of the king's physicians was issued this morning. It read:

"Though the stage of convalescence has not yet arrived, his majesty's progress is such that the proposed change to the south coast is now desirable."

The bulletin was issued after a two-hour consultation at Buckingham palace. It was stated just when his majesty could make the trip to Bognor, but it is understood that before the journey is made an official announcement will be given out. It is not likely that the king and his court will travel tomorrow as the prospects of good conditions did not seem favorable.

JAIL TERMS LIKELY FOR COURT DODGERS

Holloway To Force Appearance of Offenders Given Copies.

In a letter written Thursday to Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Recorder Murphy M. Holloway, of the second division of police court, announced his intention of breaking up the practice of offenders failing to appear on copies of charges and proposed to do this by imposing heavy jail sentences if necessary.

Recorder Holloway reported to the chief that during January 98 persons, or about 100 per cent of all those brought for his court, failed to appear on copies and were adjudged in contempt of court.

Deploing this Judge Holloway declared his intention of having cases of failure to appear looked against such offenders, necessitating posting of a $25 cash bond. In the event that this plan is ineffective the judge intended his intention of imposing straight station house or stockade sentences without the option of a fine.

LINDY WILL FLY BACK WITH BIG MAIL CARGO

Washington, February 7.—(AP)—A cargo of 100,000 pieces of mail awaits Colonel Lindbergh to transport back to the United States on his return flight from Panama.

Denying reports from Panama that mail would not be carried on the return flight, Assistant Postmaster General George W. Moore late today stated the colonel would fly the mail again and would make his trip on Sunday. At the same time the postal authorities disclosed the amount of mail awaiting his flight at the Cristobal postoffice.

The postoffice department, however, has ruled that Lindbergh will carry back only mail originating at the Canal Zone and this may cut down the cargo to be transported on the flight from the amount now at the post office at Panama.

Between now and Sunday Colonel Lindbergh will make another of his noted goodwill flights to Colombia to pay a compliment to that country for the flag made to the United States last year by one of its flyers, Lieutenant Mendez.

The postoffice officials today expressed gratification over the report that Colombia has granted permission for the entrance of United States mail. Heretofore that government has held back mail originating at other countries from its boundaries because the complete concession of air services is held by a German concern in Colombia.

Lindbergh will leave Cristobal tomorrow morning and will make a 600-mile flight over tropical jungles to reach Bogota, the Colombian capital, the night after, and will return to Panama on Saturday.

STUDENTS TO STAGE MOCK CONVENTION AT EMORY MEETING

Students of government at Agnes Scott college and Emory university will participate in the Southeastern Citizenship conference at Emory in the form of a "model constitutional assembly" for the state of Georgia. The convention will be held Thursday afternoon, February 14, in the university auditorium at Emory, under the direction of Dr. C. B. Gosnell, Emory professor.

The entire classes of government of Dr. Gosnell and Dr. Philip Davidson, of Agnes Scott, totaling 65 students, will participate in the presentation of the mock convention. The governor of Georgia will be represented by Ben Warren, of Griffin, who will preside until Glenn Rainey, Atlanta graduate student, is elected chairman of the convention.

The principal efforts of the model convention will be to present for adoption several needed reforms in state government for Georgia, and the students, acting as experts in the field, will proceed to discuss these measures pro and con.

TROLLEY OPERATOR FINED BY JUDGE IN TRAFFIC CASE

Emphasizing the fact that a traffic violator is a traffic violator, whether he is driving an automobile, a truck, a wagon or a street car, and should be arrested and treated as such, Recorder Murphy M. Holloway Thursday afternoon fined J. E. Cox, a street car operator, $10 and costs for driving his car against a stop light. In fining Cox, Judge Holloway commended the arresting officer, Patrolman K. A. Wooster, for his performance of duty.

Patrolman Wooster told the court that he was riding a Federal prison street car Tuesday night as it was making a turn, on a green light from Whitehall into Mitchell street. Cox, he maintained, was operating a Georgia avenue car and was attempting to cross Whitehall against the light, and as a result a collision was narrowly averted.

SATURDAY IS MADE WEEKLY HOLIDAY FOR EMORY BOYS

Change of weekly holiday for Emory university students from Monday to Saturday was announced Thursday by Dean Goodridge C. White following action of the administrative council of the university. The change will be effective at the beginning of the fall term of 1929.

Explaining the change, Dean White said a full five-day class schedule is needed instead of the four and a half day schedule, which has been unofficially in existence in the past. Under the new junior-senior college program to be installed next year, a greater number of afternoon classes will be held and usual Saturday afternoon "cuts" would interfere with this plan, it is said.

Shift of the holiday was considered in 1927, but due to the size of the student body, it was not effected. Decision of the administrative council is to be final, it is said.

TAILOR DESIGNERS TO SPEND BIG SUM FOR ADVERTISING

Detroit, February 7.—(AP)—The Merchant Tailors Designers association is to tell its story in the most effective manner possible. It is to spend $2,000,000 in the next four years in advertising, mostly in newspapers.

Bride of 5 Days To Learn Status At Hearing Today

The question of whether Mrs. L. L. Hutchinson, 16-year-old bride of five days, will return to her Augusta home with a mission of the law or continue her interrupted honeymoon will be decided at noon today, when the girl appears in Superior Judge D. Thomas' court at a habeas corpus hearing.

Until last Sunday, Mrs. Hutchinson was Miss Sophia Antonopoulos, but on that day, at Aiken, S. C., was married to Hutchinson, whom she is said to have met while he was a waiter at an Augusta restaurant owned by her two uncles.

This union was not approved by the uncles, it seems, so when the girl and her husband arrived in Atlanta early Thursday morning they were greeted by officers who took her into custody on instructions to hold her for Augusta officers.

Hutchinson, resenting this disturbance of her marital relations, promptly petitioned for a habeas corpus writ, which was granted Thursday afternoon. In the meantime, Lieutenant A. E. Hurt, of the Augusta police, informed that the girl is a "wayward child" and must be returned to her uncle, James Antonopoulos, who swore out the warrant.

Murphy, of Augusta, were speakers at the morning session.

COOLIDGE NOMINATES NEVILLE FOR COMMAND

Will Succeed Lejeune in Marine Corps If Confirmed by Senate.

Washington, February 7.—(AP)—Major General Wendell C. Neville, commander of the marine corps base at Quantico, was nominated today by President Coolidge to succeed Major General John A. Lejeune as commander of the marine corps.

The senate must confirm the nomination before General Neville can take over the office which will become vacant March 5, when General Lejeune's term expires.

General Neville served with distinction in the American expeditionary forces in France during the world war. He commanded the fifth regiment of marines in the Verdun and Chateau Thierry sectors, and led the fourth marine brigade in the subsequent operations about Soissons, the Marne sector, St. Mihiel, the Champagne and the Meuse-Argonne. After the armistice he participated in the march to the Rhine by the army of occupation and aided in taking over the Coblenz bridgehead.

For this service he was awarded both the army and navy distinguished service medals, received the Croix de Guerre with four palms and two stars, and was decorated with the French legion of honor.

After returning from France the general became assistant to the commandant of the marine corps, remaining in Washington until August, 1925, when he was assigned to command the department of the Pacific at San Francisco. In May, 1927, he was appointed commander of the marine base at Quantico.

Neville was born in Virginia May 12, 1870, and graduated from the naval academy in 1890. He went to Cuba as a lieutenant with the marine forces during the Spanish-American war, and was promoted to captain for gallantry in the battle of Guantanamo. Later he was assigned to duty in China at the time of the Boxer rebellion.

He served in Cuba during the revolutionary activities of 1906 and in 1914 commanded the second regiment of marines in the occupation of Vera Cruz, Mexico. He received the congressional medal of honor for conspicuous bravery under fire at Vera Cruz. When America entered the world war Neville was in charge of the marine detachment at the American legation in Peking.

He was made brigadier general in March, 1920, with temporary rank as major general. The higher rank was made permanent in December, 1925.

BALDWIN TO WED SUZANNE LENGLEN AFTER DIVORCE

Nice, France, February 7.—(AP)—"Papa" Lenglen, father of Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis star, is quoted in the local press as saying the Kellogg anti-war pact today.

M. Lenglen was quoted as saying: "Mr. Baldwin already has started his divorce in America, I believe. When the decree is granted I expect his marriage to my daughter."

Eyes Dead, Skin Not Real, Duveen Says of 'La Belle' Painting in $50,000 Suit

And Then There Are "Plaits" of Flesh About Her Throat, Asserts Noted London Expert.

New York, February 7.—(AP)—Grave-eyed, faintly smiling little lady "La Belle Ferroniere" passed through a supreme court this afternoon. Sauntering back and forth in front of her as she rested, a thing of paint and canvas, on a chair where light from a big window fell across her tranquil features, Sir Joseph Duveen, famous art expert, declared:

"That her skin did not look like real human skin."

That she had "plaits" of flesh about her throat.

He also said that he was right the first time he made the statement that caused Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn, owner of "La Belle," to sue him for $50,000 for slander of title.

He said then and he says that "La Belle" is not a Leonardo Da Vinci. Mrs. Hahn alleges that his comment spoiled the sale of her picture, which, she contends, is the work of the old master.

All afternoon Sir Joseph discussed before the jury of business men which is to decide whether "La Belle" is a Da Vinci's reasons for believing she is not.

By the time court adjourned, members of the jury were showing symptoms of "art connoisseurship." They had arisen from the benches drawn up for them in front of the portrait and were asking him all sorts of questions—questions which he answered by pointing out with his gold pencil what he described as defects in "La Belle's" features and coloring.

On another chair was placed a large photograph of another "La Belle Ferroniere," No. 1600 in the Louvre in Paris, which Sir Joseph declared art critics agree, is a work of the old master.

"The throat," Sir Joseph said, pointing to the disputed picture, "is not according to anatomy. The flesh doesn't look like flesh. It's an attempt to paint flesh. The profile is not pleasant. It is badly drawn. That right eye is expressionless. It has neither form nor feeling. Both eyes are too large. The right eye is too large both horizontally and vertically as to perspective."

"There is a little life in the left eye, but the right eye is entirely dead."

Starting again at the portrait and pointing to the right eye with his pencil, he shook his greying head and muttered:

"Dead—dead—very dead."

There were other reasons why he thought "La Belle" could not possibly be a real Da Vinci. The background of the picture was opaque, not translucent, like the background of a painting by the great master. "La Belle's" gorgeously brocaded gown, he said, was "brick red," while the gown worn by the girl in the Louvre portrait was a "reddish, purplish brown." In the Hahn portrait, he declared, the colors presented "no warmth, no tenderness."

Mrs. Hahn contends that had not Sir Joseph questioned the portrait's origin, her "La Belle" now would be hanging in the Kansas City Museum of Art.

NEW YORK POLICE RAID NETS 120 WANTED PERSONS

New York, February 7.—(AP)—A dragnet thrown out by the police in the five boroughs of the city today had caught in its meshes 120 persons. Acting Police Commissioner Philip D. Hoyt said the roundup was a warning to the criminal element that they need expect no armistice due to Commissioner Whalen being out of the city.

The greater number of those taken into custody, said the police, were charged with major offenses. All the cells at police headquarters were filled by midnight and precinct stations were notified to hold the remaining prisoners.

A raid on a lower east side flat resulted in the arrest of two women and eight men, ranging in ages from 17 to 20 years. ## GEORGIA 'U' STUDENTS TOLD OF SOUTH'S GAINS

Richard Courts, Jr., of Atlanta, Delivers Address to Commerce School.

BY CHARLES MARTIN.

Athens, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—"Of all sections of the country the south has the brightest future," in the opinion of Richard W. Courts, Jr., investment banker of Atlanta, in an address delivered today before students of the commerce school of the University of Georgia. Mr. Courts, an alumnus of the university, was invited to speak here by Dean R. P. Brooks, of the commerce school.

Mr. Courts is vice president of Courts & Co., Atlanta, dealers in investment securities. He was the fifth speaker in the series arranged by the school of commerce for the purpose of familiarizing students with economic conditions and prospects in Georgia and the south.

After his address Mr. Courts conducted an open forum for the benefit of students. He discussed the origin and development of the investment business and the rise of southern commerce through promotion efforts of bond brokers and investment bankers.

With the development of the south's resources and increase in wealth and population, our southern corporations are finding increased home markets for their goods, and with excellent labor conditions, we are able to compete in other markets for the sale of our goods," Mr. Courts said. "The south stands on the threshold of an intensive industrial development and for the first time in their history our southern corporations find southern banking houses ready and able to supply ample capital for their needs."

"As to the future trend, we can say that the American public is richer today than ever before; corporations have the largest surpluses, largest amounts of cash and current resources and strongest financial structures in their history and business is generally good."

DECISION IN FAVOR OF INSURANCE CO. REVERSED BY COURT

The court of appeals Thursday remanded the case of Loy against the Travelers Insurance company, which grew out of the death of William Loy, husband of the plaintiff. The case first was decided by the industrial commission in favor of the insurance company but this decision was reversed by the court of appeals and the case remanded for another hearing before the commission. Mrs. Loy sought compensation for the death of her husband who was killed while rolling a wheelbarrow loaded with castings. The insurance company sought to have an autopsy about a month after the death and Mrs. Loy declined to permit it. The case now will go back to the industrial commission for another hearing.

The court of appeals sustained a damage suit verdict of $20,000 given against the Western and Atlantic railroad and in favor of Mrs. Josephine Lechridge. The suit grew out of the death of Mr. Lechridge, who was killed near Adairsville in 1924 when the train collided.

The state industrial commission will grant a re-hearing in the Loy case as directed by the court according to Hal M. Stanley, chairman of the commission. He said the case would be heard at Rome.

McElwaney Gets Life Sentence in Second Trial

Fairburn, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—George Wiley McElwaney, who was convicted of slaying Warm Rainwater, in Campbell county, last August, will not die in the electric chair, as scheduled, if the jury recommendation in his second trial given today is considered.

McElwaney's second trial today ended with the jury recommending life imprisonment. The jury was out five hours.

McElwaney was charged with the shooting and killing of Rainwater last August. He was indicted by the October term of the Campbell county grand jury on charges of murder. He went to trial at the October special term of superior court of Campbell county and was found guilty of first degree murder and was sentenced to be electrocuted December 5, 1928. Immediately after the verdict, motion was filed for a new trial. The motion was postponed and a hearing was held January 19, 1929, which resulted in the granting of a new trial.

The second trial opened Wednesday and concluded today. The jury found McElwaney guilty but recommended that the sentence be life imprisonment.

According to testimony McElwaney claimed he killed Rainwater in self-defense. The fight was the result of a family feud.

McElwaney's attorneys are Peck, Randolph and Henson, of Atlanta.

Predictions were made that the budget will be approved by the board of education, and Raymond B. Ritchie, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, Thursday delivered to Mayor I. N. Ragsdale the budget of the school department approved at a special meeting of the board Tuesday.

Under the law Mr. Ragsdale will approve or veto the budget by Saturday.

Mr. Powell explained that while the budget was adopted as a tentative one, the idea in so approving it was to permit the board to utilize additional funds in the event they are provided during the year.

"If we had passed the budget as a final one, we could not have used other funds in the event they became available," Mr. Powell told Mr. Ragsdale. "Unless we get more money, we will be forced to cut the salaries of school teachers the latter part of this year. That is the reason why we sanctioned the budget as a tentative one."

Says Al Smith Is Not Candidate For New York Mayor

New York, February 7.—(AP)—The New York Times said today that Alfred E. Smith would not be a candidate for mayor next fall as has been advocated in various quarters.

The paper said it had learned that Mr. Smith informed Mayor Walker of his position shortly before he departed for Florida. Mayor Walker has not indicated his position. Former Mayor John Hylan is again a candidate.

Mr. Smith's statement was made, the paper said, at about the time the first mention of "Smith for Mayor" was made in city political circles. Since then the suggestion has been made frequently in editorials and otherwise.

Opposition to the idea of having Mr. Smith become the democratic candidate in the coming city election is voiced in an editorial signed by Paul Block, publisher, in his papers and appearing in other papers as a paid advertisement.

The editorial declares that Mr. Smith should not become a candidate for any office unless he is again nominated for president.

Distinguished Artist Praises Stone Mountain Memorial

THOMAS NAST, JR., IMPRESSED BY ITS GRANDEUR

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Stone Mountain, in grandeur and magnificence, surpasses any spot on the face of the globe for a national memorial and the carving of the Confederate memorial group should be finished by the cooperative efforts of all agencies interested, in the opinion of Thomas Nast, Jr., New York distinguished artist and son of the world-famous cartoonist, whose drawings in Harper's Weekly wielded such tremendous influence on political affairs several decades ago. Mr. Nast, accompanied by his family, is in Atlanta paying his first visit to the south and will remain here through Saturday. He made a special trip to Atlanta to see Stone Mountain.

"In all my travels I have never seen anything to approach Stone Mountain in massive grandeur and gigantic impressiveness," Mr. Nast said. "It offers such a wonderful opportunity for a memorial that I think even the government of the United States should aid in the completion of the present plan."

Followed Father's Footsteps.
Mr. Nast is an artist and also followed in his father's footsteps as a cartoonist. He was for years art director of the advertising department of the Standard Oil company and has held other important art commissions. "Completion of the Stone Mountain memorial means really the dawning of a tomorrow," he continued. "It is in some respects a great, serious cartoon. It is not really a thing commemorating the past, but is looking into the future."

Thomas Nast, Sr., father of Mr. Nast, was the cartoonist whose drawing finally shattered the Tweed ring in New York which once controlled the activities of Tammany Hall. The elder Mr. Nast created the elephant as the emblem of the republican party, the donkey for the democratic party and was the first to use a tiger in describing Tammany Hall. His cartoons were so striking that many of them were reprinted during the recent national campaign.

Adventurous Career.
The elder Nast enjoyed an adventurous career. He served with Garibaldi in his campaigns for a united Italy and returned to the United States just prior to the outbreak of the War Between the States. For Harper's Weekly he drew cartoons calling for volunteers and won from Lincoln the statement that "Nast was the best recruiting agent the Federal army had." At the end of the war he was commissioned by General Grant to draw a portrait symbolizing peace.

$10,000 DAMAGES ASKED BY VICTIM IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Suit for $10,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received by a Gulf Refining company truck collided with his automobile bus on Ponce de Leon avenue near East Lake drive on December 31, was filed Thursday in the city court of Atlanta by J. H. Green. The suit names as defendants the Gulf Refining company, and D. C. Banks, driver of the truck. Green was the driver of the automobile bus. Two of his passengers were fatally injured in the crash.

Mr. Nast, the younger, now has retired from business and is making a pleasure trip over the country. He said he had not visited Atlanta before, but that he was charmed by the manner in which the people here received him. "I was deeply impressed by the courteous manner in which I was received in all parts of the south I have visited," he said. "I do not find that high speed moving back and forth here that I find in the north. The people are calmer and more serene and are decidedly more courteous than some of the other sections of the country."

DUREN, GRINSTEAD CLEMENCY PLEAS HEARD BY BOARD

After hearing several pleas for clemency filed by attorneys representing convicts in minor cases, the state prison commission Thursday afternoon began a study of the records in the cases of Grif Grinstead, Montgomery county, and Mrs. Nora Duren, Ware county.

Grinstead is seeking a commutation of a death sentence imposed on him following his conviction of killing Homer Stuckey, Montgomery county deputy sheriff. Unless the governor grants a commutation, Grinstead will be executed at Milledgeville February 22.

Mrs. Duren, who is serving a life term on a charge of killing Ira James, in Ware county, is seeking a pardon on the ground that she did not kill James but confessed to the murder of his husband. She filed a statement with the commission in which she declared that her husband killed James.

The commission held hearings in both cases Wednesday and took them under advisement.

GRINSTEAD'S STORY CALLED "WILD YARN"

Macon, Ga., February 7.—(AP)—"Grif" Grinstead's statement that M. L. McRae, while serving as sheriff of Montgomery county, aided him to escape and remain a fugitive from the state prison farm where he was serving a life sentence for murder, was branded as a "wild yarn" by Sheriff T. E. Burch, present sheriff, and other residents of the county today.

"No one here who knows anything about the case believes Grinstead," Sheriff Burch stated over long distance telephone.

Grinstead is under sentence to die on February 22 for a second murder. He was convicted of the murder of Homer Stuckey, Montgomery county officer, and originally sentenced to die on February 1. The execution was delayed through a writ of habeas corpus filed shortly before the day of execution on the grounds that Grinstead's sentence did not comply with the law regarding the setting of the execution date. He was rescheduled last Monday by Judge Eschel Graham, of the Oconee circuit.

Attorneys for Grinstead, in a statement to the state prison commission in Atlanta Wednesday, charged that McRae, whose term as sheriff of Montgomery county recently expired, had urged Grinstead to escape from the life sentence which he was serving at the state prison farm for a previous murder, and that the sheriff promised "protection" from arrests.

37 Rural Mail Boxes Are Knocked Down By Unknown Vandal

A new form of vandalism was brought to the attention of government authorities Thursday, when two reports were received by Joe P. Johnston, postoffice inspector in charge, to the effect that parties unknown had been indulging in the playful sport of running an automobile or truck into some 37 rural mail boxes, thereby causing a sudden change in their position from the perpendicular to the horizon.

The first report came in the form of a telegram from John M. Brady, a rural mail carrier at Mauck.

Shortly after this the postmaster at Buena Vista, which is located near Mauck, telephoned in to the postoffice inspectors' headquarters that a similar fate had befallen some 15 boxes in his territory.

Postoffice inspectors have been assigned to investigate the case.

Atlanta's Rise Shown in Issue Of 'City Builder'

Exceeding even the best of its many magnificent issues of the past, The City Builder, official magazine of the chamber of commerce of Atlanta, came from the press Thursday for the February number in form and contents of astounding beauty and interest.

The cover carries the story of Atlanta's steady advance, telling in picture the epic of "building in steel." A great steel skeleton structure for some huge building rises in eye-challenging perspective over the modern skyline of the city, telling in parable the vision of growth to come unlimited.

On the editorial page a beautiful tribute is paid to the late James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Constitution, who also was an associate editor of the chamber publication. Mr. Hollomon died January 25, two days after he had suffered terrible injuries in a fall down the stairwell of a hotel.

After telling of Mr. Hollomon's unselfish, constant efforts for the advancement of Atlanta and Georgia, the editorial concludes:

"His body rests in his native land, among the mountains of North Carolina, but his soul goes marching on, impelling his fellowmen to catch step with his noble effort for the welfare of humanity."

Leading articles in the issue include the annual report of the chamber of commerce by Benjamin S. Barker, executive vice president and secretary, reports of divisional activities made by their respective heads: the story of Tech's journey and victory at the Rose Bowl; the life story of Col. Sam Tate, chairman-elect for the state highway department, by Ralph Smith; a resume of the growth of our trade financial program for 1929 outlined by J. Henson Tatum, secretary to Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, and many other interesting and timely articles.

Catarrh is Terrible Drain on Vitality

Find a man, woman or child who is afflicted with chronic catarrh of the nose and its connecting air passages and you will always find a patient who is most susceptible to more serious diseases. Why? Science explains that catarrh interferes with natural breathing thus preventing proper oxygenation and purification of the blood by the lungs and also absolutely prevents restful, refreshing sleep. Catarrh is a constant drain upon the nutrition of the body, making the patient weak and thereby susceptible to all germ infections such as colds, flu, pneumonia, etc.

Your physician will tell you that catarrh is a local condition, not a systemic disease. You must fight it constantly with a local remedy that reaches the spot. Of the many remedies that have been tested for the relief of catarrh, none has given such uniformly successful results to the physician or attained such popular favor as the prescription of Dr. Runyon's White Wonder Salve. Applied in the nostrils, morning and night, "White Wonder" gives quick and most delightful relief. Clean, greaseless and absolutely stainless, White Wonder is a perfect example of the finest pharmaceutical art—a joy and comfort to everyone who suffers with nasal catarrh.

"Don't Talk About Low Prices"

We asked some of our friends attending our Midwinter Homefurnishing Sales what they thought was the particular feature we should stress in advertising this event.

"Don't talk about low prices," they said. "Everybody knows your affiliation with Macy's tremendous buying power enables you to constantly sell merchandise as low as the lowest in Atlanta. Talk about the authenticity of design, the harmony of coloring, the quality of construction, assured by the watchfulness of your trained furniture buyers and stylists."

And so we're saying about the Midwinter Homefurnishing Sales that every piece lives up to Davison's (and Atlanta's) high standards. And we're not even mentioning that prices are lower than you would expect (although they really are!)

FORMER BANK TELLER BOND COMMITTEE POST HELD IN $2,000 BOND IS DECLINED BY JONES

Percy F. Eckman Said To Have Confessed to Embezzlement.

Percy F. Eckman, of 1430 Fairbanks avenue, former teller in the trust department of the Citizens and Southern bank, was released under $2,000 bond Thursday following his arrest on a bench warrant charging that he abstracted and converted to his own use funds of the bank said to approximate $7,000. He was indicted by the federal grand jury here Wednesday.

A national bank examiner reported to the district attorney's office that Eckman confessed the embezzlement to bank officials before the irregularity was discovered on the advice of a minister whom he had told of his act. He had been employed by the bank nine years.

The shortage was said to have occurred in the handling of coupon trust accounts over a period of several months.

Seals Given 12 Months.

Seals was charged with stealing six red steers and a heifer, valued at $200, from F. S. Hall. The jury recommended punishment as for a misdemeanor.

'SARGON IS JUST WONDERFUL,' SAYS ATLANTA R. R. MAN

Wouldn't Have Believed
30 Days Ago That Any Medicine on Earth Could Do for Him What Sar-gon Did.

Repeating the success with which it has met in other cities where it has been introduced, Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills are winning new friends by the hundreds every day in Atlanta.

J. W. ASH.
The special representative of the Sargon Laboratories who is located at the main store of Jacobs' Pharmacy, 6 and 8 Marietta St., introducing this scientific new treatment, is daily hearing from more and more people as the fame of this medicine spreads. One of the most interesting statements that he has heard is that of J. W. Ash, of 47 Anton Street, fireman on the Seaboard, who said:

"If anyone had told me thirty days ago that the Sargon treatment would bring about the change in my condition that it has, I would not have believed them."

"I had terrible spells of indigestion, and had been told that I had neuritis of the heart. Frequently gas on my stomach would cause such pressure that it would almost cut my breath off, my appetite was very poor, and food did not taste right to me. My nerves were upset and kept me in a bad humor all the time. What sleep I got did me little good, and I just felt like life was not worth living. I felt drowsy all the time."

"But I am a different man today and Sargon must have all the credit. My indigestion has disappeared and there is no gas pressure against my heart. My appetite is fine and my food agrees with me and gives me nourishment and strength. I sleep fine, and that drowsy, no good feeling has left me. I think so much of this medicine that I am going to start my mother on it."

"I took Sargon Soft Mass Pills as directed and it was only a few days until I became regulated. Before taking them I had to take some kind of laxative all the time."

"The Sargon treatment is just wonderful."

The Sargon representative is at Jacobs' main store, 6 and 8 Marietta Street, where he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of the medicine. Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills may also be obtained at the other Jacobs' stores all over Atlanta. (Adv.)

Editor of Journal of Labor
Unable to Serve, He Tells Mayor.

In declining to accept appointment as a member of Mayor I. N. Ragsdale's committee to recommend items to be included in the proposed $8,000,000 bond issue to be submitted to voters in March, Jerome Jones, editor of the Journal of Labor, addressed the following communication to the mayor:

"Honorable I. N. Ragsdale, Mayor, City of Atlanta, City Hall, Atlanta, Georgia. Permitted Sir: Your letter notifying me of my appointment as a member of the committee to conduct a survey of the needs of the city looking toward a bond issue and particularly the apportionment of a possible bond issue as among the needs of the various departments of the city, has been received."

"It is needless to say that the honor you proffer and the personal confidence you express is keenly appreciated. Permit me to say that the circumstances permitted I would gladly accept the commission you offer. Having in mind the grave responsibility this commission carries, calling for the keenest attention to all details and necessitating the seeking of personal knowledge of necessities of each department, I feel that it is such a prodigious task that I am not at this time in a position to undertake it."

"In justice to you, therefore, and to the people of Atlanta, though with great reluctance on my part, I must decline to accept your gracious offer. 'Whatever services I can render as a citizen to you personally and to the people of Atlanta, I will most cheerfully render. Yours with much respect, (Signed) 'JEROME JONES.'"

Miss Mae Everitt, winner of The Constitution's Mary Pickford "Coquette" contest, will leave Atlanta this morning at 7:35 o'clock for Chicago on the first leg of a trans-continental trip to Hollywood to be the guest for a week of Mary Pickford, perennial screen favorite.

Just prior to Miss Everitt's departure for Chicago, the Holproof Hoisery company, of New York, wired Rich to supply Miss Everitt with a box of Holproof hose as a compliment from the makers of this popular brand. Miss Everitt was delighted with the beautiful gift.

Miss Everitt and Miss Robinson will board a special Santa Fe Mary Pickford train in Chicago and will arrive in Los Angeles on February 12. Here they will have the opportunity of watching Miss Pickford actually working before the cameras in scenes for "Coquette." They will visit the sound stages, where no guests are permitted to enter, and meet officials and celebrities on the lot.

KEFENOKEE RESERVE PROPOSAL APPROVED

Commissioner Twitty Says
Area Would Become One of Greatest Game Refuges.

Efforts of United States Senator William J. Harris to have the Okefenokee swamp set aside as a government forest reserve will have the full support of the state department of game and fish because the establishment of a forestry preserve would mean the preservation of one of the greatest game refuges on the American continent, according to Peter S. Twitty, state game and fish commissioner, in a statement made public Thursday.

"If the government takes over the Okefenokee swamp as a forest preserve it will mean that the state department of game and fish can utilize the whole territory covered by the swamp as a bird and game refuge," Mr. Twitty said. "The swamp contains 750,000 acres and is inhabited by many birds which are found nowhere else on the continent. The state could take over parts of the swamp under federal control and utilize those parts for refuges for various kinds of birds and animals."

Commissioner Twitty said the swamp many years ago harbored millions of wild duck in the winter time, and said the disappearance of food materials and the encroachment of civilization had cut down the number. He expressed the opinion that the swamp again would become a haven for wild duck if the state took over parts of it as refuges.

"The swamp also is teeming with valuable fur-bearing animals, more being found in this swamp than in all the remainder of the state," he said. "Among these animals are the raccoon and the otter. The swamp also is the last refuge of bears."

Commissioner Twitty said bird sanctuaries from leading universities of the country visit Okefenokee swamp every year to study wild life. "We are enthusiastically supporting Senator Harris in his move and we are certain that we will be able to establish one of the greatest game and bird refuges in the world if the government decides to take over the swamp as a forestry preserve," Commissioner Twitty said.

California Feels Record Cold; Western Towns Are Isolated by Snow Drifts

Snow Slides Block Railroads; Ships in Great Lakes Crippled by Ice Floes.

Chicago, February 7.—(United News.)—Storm set record cold marks in California, isolated towns in Colorado, crippled vessels on the Great Lakes, and damaged transportation and communication lines in several states.

Huge snowdrifts cut off Craig and Silverton, Colo., from the outside world. Craig had just succeeded in digging through a similar barricade when the big drifts built up by the latest storm blocked highways again and road crews were sent to the task of opening a path for transportation.

Silverton was reported in a more desperate situation. Gigantic drifts, some as high as 75 feet, blocked both railroad tracks and highways, tying up traffic completely. Nine snowslides smothered the rails of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, forcing the cancellation of all schedules.

One of the slides was believed to be the largest in the railroad's history and was estimated in height from 40 to 75 feet and 800 feet wide. Officials believed the job of clearing down such a mountain of snow was too stupendous and reported it would be useless to employ plans for another week.

50-Year Record Falls.
In California, the land of citrus groves, a cold weather record of 50 years' standing was broken and the weather bureau issued warnings to prepare for even more severe temperatures.

Citrus growers in southern California were advised to equip their orchards with smudge pots tonight. The minimum temperature in San Francisco was 34.8 degrees, the lowest on this date since 1884. A prediction of 32 degrees for tonight was made.

Idaho, Colorado, Montana, and Wyoming reported temperatures ranging from 8 to 22 degrees below zero. Northern Colorado was swept by blizzards with heavy snowfalls, and some roads out of Denver were impassable. Iowa and Michigan reported similar conditions, while sections of Wisconsin, Kansas and Nebraska were affected by storms of lesser violence.

The steamer Waukegan limped into port at Kenosha, Wis., today 19 hours behind schedule after it narrowly escaped being sunk by the ice in Lake Michigan. The ship had 60 feet of half inch steel raked from one side, its boilers partly disabled and a 60-degree port list threatened disaster. The steamer makes daily trips from Chicago to Racine and Kenosha and occasionally stops at Milwaukee.

PHONE DRIVE RAISES $1,500 TO AID CHEST

Campaign Will Be Continued in Effort To Reach 3,000 Persons.

Three days of solicitation by telephone in an effort to reduce the shortage of $97,000 in the amount sought for the 1929 program of societies supported through the Atlanta Community Chest have brought the response of 72 new subscribers and a total pledged of $1,549, it was reported Thursday night.

"This average of $21.50 for each subscription is highly gratifying," said Henry C. Heinz, chairman of the executive committee of the chest, "as it exceeds slightly the average subscription in the campaign of personal canvassing that began November 19, and shows an interest in the chest's objects and methods."

"This interest should be general, we think, as the Community Chest and its 39 societies are performing the community's work of social welfare efficiently and economically, without waste of effort or money. The Community Chest and its agencies belong to the public and are designed for public service and to fulfill the public's obligation of helplessness toward the less fortunate and of constructive, thoughtful, effective philanthropy."

The telephone campaign will be continued, with the object of presenting the appeal for support to 3,000 Atlanta men and women who were not reached or failed to respond in the campaign last fall, Mr. Heinz said.

REVISED COTTONSEED RATES ARE ATTACKED

The interstate commerce commission resumed its hearings in the general investigation into rates, rules, regulations and practices of common carriers respecting cottonseed and allied products at the Baltimore hotel Thursday afternoon. The meeting is presided over by John T. Money, attorney general for the interstate commerce commission. He is assisted by Commissioner Esch, and Vice Chairman Nance, of the South Carolina railroad commission, and E. M. Price, rate expert of the Georgia Public Service commission, are cooperating.

Thursday's session was devoted to rebuttal testimony, when C. W. Bridges, assistant traffic manager of the Southern Cotton Oil company, of New Orleans, appeared before the commission and offered evidence purporting to prove that the changes in freight rates sought by common carriers would increase the freight on cottonseed alone one million dollars annually, with allied products proportionately affected. He will resume his testimony at today's session. It is expected that his evidence will be completed by Saturday, after which the commission will adjourn until February 18, when they will meet at Fort Worth, Texas.

S. R. Barnett, attorney for the Southern Cotton Oil company, appeared with Mr. Bridges.

COUNCIL TO LEGISLATE CHARITY GIFTS TODAY

City council will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon to approve contracts to legislate $62,100 appropriated in the January finance sheet for 21 charitable organizations.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale issued the special call Thursday on the advice of City Attorney James L. Mayson. The allocations have been attacked as illegal in the courts and the council will pass ordinances enabling the mayor to enter into contracts with the organizations by which the respective institutions would render certain services to the city for the money appropriated to them.

The charitable allocations along with others were attacked in injunction proceedings in Fulton county superior court and will be up for a hearing Saturday before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy.

Decision to attempt to legalize the allocations was made when it was learned that many of the organizations which are materially assisting the city in the care of the poor and unfortunate are in financial stress. Agencies affected and the amounts they are to receive are Red Cross, $3,000; Atlanta Child's Home, $4,000; Carrie Steele Logan Home, $1,000; Churches' Home for Girls, $3,000; Community Home for Girls, $1,000; Family Welfare Society, $2,500; Florence Crittenton Home, $3,000; Gate City Free Kindergarten, $1,000; Georgia Children's Home Society, $4,000; Home for Friendless, $2,500; Home for Incurables, $4,000; Home for Old Women, $4,000; Leonard Street Orphanage, $1,000; Sheltering Arms, $4,000; Anti-Tuberculosis Association, $2,000; West Point Milk Fund, $200; American Rescue Workers, $600; Holmes Institute, $300; Samaritan clinic, $5,000; Henrietta Eggleston Child's Memorial, $2,500.

POET LAUREATE OF STATE SPEAKS BEFORE CITY CLUB

The world needs its poets, its artists and its musicians just as much as it needs its spiritual, business and professional men. Ernest Neal, poet laureate of Georgia, told members of the City club of Atlanta Thursday noon at their weekly luncheon in the Pine room at the Ansley hotel.

"A poet in his work always has an aspiration and sets his work as a poet with the hope that his inspiration will be passed on to those who read his verse," Mr. Neal said. "The work of the poets long has been recognized as one of the most vital needs of peace and prosperity. When a man or a woman muses on the pleasant thoughts brought to them in a poem they forget enmity and evil and only good can result."

Mr. Neal lives at Calhoun, some of his works having brought great fame to himself and the northern section of Georgia in which he has spent all his life. He was created poet laureate by the legislature several years ago upon the death of the state's first poet laureate, Frank L. Stanton.

Mr. Neal read a number of his verses to members of the City club, some of them not yet having appeared in published form. Among them was a tribute to James A. Holloman, late associate editor of The Constitution, of whom he was a close friend. Mayor I. N. Ragsdale was among the club's special guests at Thursday's luncheon.

A. T. & T. TO SPEND $82,000,000 IN YEAR ON LONG DISTANCE

New York, February 7.—(AP)—T. G. Miller, general manager of the long lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, announced today that the company had authorized a construction program for 1929 calling for expenditure of nearly $82,000,000 on new long distance telephone facilities.

He said the expansion was necessitated by increasing public use of long distance service. There had been an 18 per cent increase in 1928 over the previous year.

Part of the money will go toward construction of three additional short wave transoceanic telephone systems to take care of the increasing volume of overseas calls.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS ONLY ONE CALL IN 43-HOUR PERIOD

The first alarm, pseudo or genuine, in more than 43 hours was received by the Atlanta fire department at 3:19 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when apparatus from stations Nos. 4, 6 and 11 was dispatched to the rear of 270 Forrest avenue to extinguish a small blaze at the home of Eliza Jefferson, negro. Origin of the fire was unknown and damage was slight, according to reports.

Although officials said that no record had been shattered by the department's long period of inactivity, it was pointed out that such a continued absence of fire is unusual for this time of year.

The poor business being enjoyed by the fire-fighters was attributed by Chief W. B. Cody to rainy weather.

LEGION MEETS TODAY

Pete Lanning, Mrs. Van Fleet on Program.

Pete Lanning, Emory university humorist, and Mrs. Van Fleet, pianist, will be featured entertainers on the program for the weekly American Legion luncheon to be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the Henry Grady hotel.

The program is being arranged by the American Legion auxiliary and according to those in charge the above features constitute only part of the extensive program which will be presented.

SPECIAL BOND GROUP TO HEAR SCHOOL HEADS

Sutton and Wells Will Appear Before Committee Next Wednesday.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools, and Jere A. Wells, superintendent of the Fulton county system, will appear before Mayor I. N. Ragsdale's special bond committee at 3 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon to discuss Atlanta's school problem. It was announced Thursday by Alderman Claude Ashley, of the fourth ward, chairman.

Issuance of bonds for public improvements hinges on a solution of the financial problem which the local school system presents, according to officials, who contend that unless additional money is obtained, Atlanta will be unable to provide sinking funds and interest to retire the proposed now $8,000,000 issue.

Mr. Ashley has announced that consideration of the school situation will be the only matter to face the committee at Wednesday's session.

The committee will not attempt to slash requests totaling more than $24,000,000 to the $8,000,000 maximum bonding limit of the city, but will undertake this task following a solution of the school problem.

Both Mr. Wells and Mr. Sutton have agreed to appear before the committee to discuss the school problem. "I know nothing of the Atlanta system and can speak only on the county schools," Mr. Wells said in

MAN AND WOMAN HELD UNDER BOND IN WHISKY CASE

Jerry Dodgen was placed under $500 bond Thursday following a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Griffith on charges of having in his possession five quarts and four pints of whisky. Bond for Mrs. J. A. Oppert, who was in the automobile when he was seized, was placed at $200.

Mrs. Oppert denied any knowledge of the whisky, and Dodgen supported her statement, saying that he was merely driving her a lift. Louis Johnson, of Milton county, was placed under bond of $1,000 on charges of having 125 gallons of whisky in an automobile. He was apprehended near the Forsyth county line, it was said, and refused to divulge the name of the owner of the liquor or the car.

THEFT OF PISTOL BRINGS 46-YEAR TERM FOR BANDIT

James Otis Alexander was sentenced to serve from four to six years Thursday by Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court when a jury found the defendant guilty of robbing T. F. Smithson, of 415 Nelson, S. W., of a revolver. On a plea of guilty to the same indictment, Ed Daniel drew a 12 months' suspended sentence. Daniel was also given a 12 months' suspended sentence on a plea of guilty to assault with intent to murder Smithson, while Alexander was found not guilty on this charge.

accepting the invitation of Mr. Ashley. "I shall be glad to give the committee any information I may have concerning the county system."

B. GRAHAM WEST TO RETURN SOON TO OFFICE DUTIES

City Comptroller B. Graham West was reported as improved Thursday at St. Joseph's infirmary, where he was taken about a week ago following an attack of influenza. Baring unforeseen complications, he will be back at his desk within a few days, it was said.

FICTITIOUS CHECKS BRING SENTENCES OF 3 TO 5 YEARS

Guilty pleas entered Thursday by J. A. Leverton to six indictments involving fictitious checks brought him a net sentence of three to five years. Leverton was charged with passing fictitious checks upon the Georgian Terrace pharmacy, Marshall and Pendergrast, Bussey's pharmacy, the Halcyon Drug company, Stephens' pharmacy and Bennett's pharmacy.

Children's COLDS

are doubly dangerous after Flu

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is AFTER influenza. Then, more than ever, colds attacking a child's weakened system may lead to bronchitis, pneumonia, sinus trouble, abscess of the ear, mastoiditis, or even the dread meningitis.

Check them Promptly Without "Dosing"

A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins leave the digestive system upset. Too much "dosing" further disturbs the digestion and lessens the appetite, just when the child needs nourishment more than ever. Internal medication should therefore be avoided, except on the advice of a physician.

As Vicks VapoRub is applied externally, it can be used freely at the first sign of a cold with no fear of upsetting even the most delicate stomach. Just rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Vicks Acts 2 Ways at Once:

(1) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

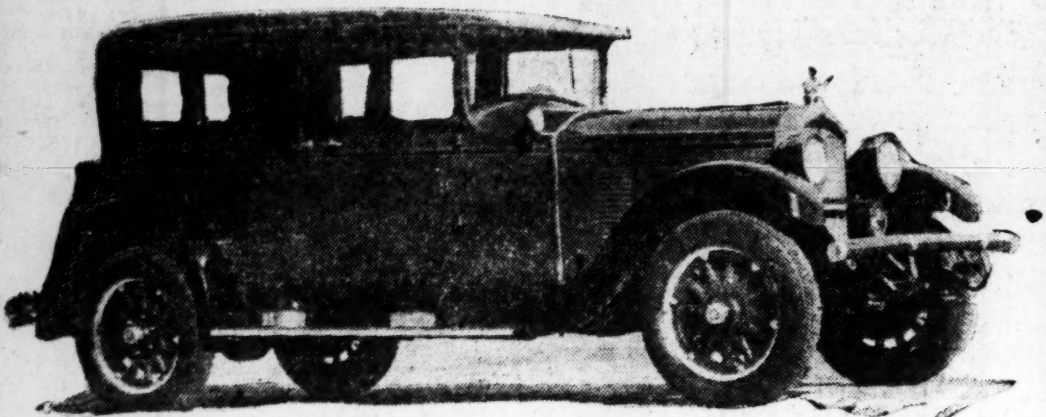

(2) At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and soreness, and thus helping the vapors to break up the congestion. Colds usually yield by morning.

Of course, Vicks 2-way action is just as effective for adults' cold-troubles as it is for those of children.

Service Star Legion President Is Distinguished Guest Here

The local chapters of the Service Star Legion will pay honor today to Mrs. William N. Irving, of Boston, Mass., national president of this worthy organization, at a luncheon in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's club. Mrs. Marcus Beck, honorary president of the Atlanta chapter, Service Star Legion, will preside over the luncheon, which will be preceded by a meeting at which the new officers of the local Service Star Legion will be installed.

Mrs. Irving, by reason of her affiliation with nationally known memorial and patriotic organizations and because of her delightful personality and social graces, is a distinguished figure in gatherings of women in every field of endeavor. As national president of the Service Star Legion she was a factor in the recent meeting of the Women's national defense council in Washington, D. C., and has played an important part in activities of the American Legion.

Of no less importance is the visit of Harold Samuels, noted pianist, who will give a concert this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club. The presence of this eminent English musician will attract several hundred prominent music lovers of this city who will listen intently to the skilled renditions of the most difficult musical compositions.

Other interesting social events of today include luncheons, teas and dinner parties at which prominent visitors, popular brides-elect and members of the college set will be central figures.

Music Club Program Is Masterfully Rendered.

Miss Edna E. Bartholomew, organist, assisted by Mrs. Benjamin Elsas, soprano, were presented in recital by the Atlanta Music club, on the "Morning Musical Series" of programs Wednesday, under the chairmanship of Miss Nana Tucker. It was a recital of profound ecclesiastical findings, masterfully rendered by two of Atlanta's most outstanding exponents of church music. Mrs. Elsas' offering was two groups—first, "The Lord Dwelleth in the Secret Place," by Ward Stephens; "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by Curran; second, "Prayer," by David Guion, and "Hear, O My People," by Stevenson, given in exquisite style with dramatic warmth and appreciation. The four songs were selected, it seemed, with an art toward voice and organ duo and not as voice alone with accompaniment. Miss Bartholomew first gave "Final," by Cesar Franck. Then the interesting little gem, "Noel sur les Flûtes," Louis-Claude-Martin, followed by the "Ronde Française," Boellmann, which attracted much praise from the audience. Closing with Vienne's "Symphonie No. 1, Final," there was such dramatic favor expressed in Miss Bartholomew's playing as to bring forth a cordial voting that it was perhaps the greatest of the annual organ recital for the club by this artist whose devotion for her chosen instrument is boundless.

Mrs. De Los L. Hill gave a short talk preceding the recital on the new plan for the next year's season of concerts, the sponsoring of the "City Music Association." The new plan is a full assurance of a membership of 3,000. A city-wide intensive campaign for members will begin February 11, closing February 16. There will be three central campaign offices. Miss Helen Knox Spain will be on duty at Cable Plaza company, Mrs. M. M. Boyd at Nunnally's store, opposite the Piedmont hotel, and Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore at headquarters at Phillips and Crew. The full membership for 1929 will be offered at $5. Mrs. Hill gives the slogan, "Think and Work for Civic Music for next week."

Miss Lunsford Weds Edward R. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lunsford, of Atlanta, announce the marriage of their daughter, Eunice Mae, to Edward Reynolds Wright, of Jacksonville, Fla., the marriage having been solemnized February 1. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father before a few friends and relatives, immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wright left for a trip through the southern part of the state.

Mrs. Fred White To Present Pupils.

The pupils of Mrs. White, who will give readings, are: Avery Coffin, Aline Hudson, Virginia Candler, Norma West, Florence Cauthorn, Dorothy Penock, Geneva Hysler, Jean Bailey, Henry Mohr, Cary Bishop, Mrs. J. Thayer Broome, Harriett Kuniansky, Hazel Taylor, Robert Coppage, and Herbert Bailey.

Fifty-Fifty Club Hears Mrs. Hess Speak on "The Living Past"

Mrs. Kate Green Hess, president of the fifth district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Fifty-Fifty club held Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Hess chose as her subject "The Living Past," her address being as follows:

When we stop to contemplate on the world we are living in, we find ourselves wondering how it comes that things are as they are, and what is the possibility of making them better. Then comes the question of how much of our civilization is our own and how much is borrowed from the past. History, as such, does not begin to tell the living past as does literature, and the findings of the archaeologist. We will find that through many channels that the achievements of man since history began rests upon those of our primitive man.

When we look back upon those of our primitive man, we should not be so glibly dismissive. Further, nothing that has been accomplished since man has learned to set down his deeds is half so marvelous as the invention of writing. The discovery of fire throws all our inventions into the shade. If we can defy space with our locomotives, our automobiles and our airplanes, it is because primitive man, with supreme courage dared to play with fire. He made bronze tools by its aid. If we can at will secure a book that sums up the knowledge of 5,000 years upon any subject, it is because primitive man recorded his deeds in picture writing later. A pet delusion of ours is that conditions have always changed rapidly.

Things have changed rapidly since the age of mechanical inventions began, but let us travel back from 1750 to the days of Sargon 1. It is a long journey in time, but how about it when measured in progress. The American colonist in the year of 1750 was scratching the ground with the same sort of wooden plow that we find pictured on the monuments of the Pharaohs. They sowed the grain as did the subjects of Queen Hatshepsut, by hand, and cut it as they did with a sickle. They threshed it also either by flail or by treading. When they took a journey they rode in a chariot, which was practically a replica of those the Babylonians used in the days of Cyrus. The tools a carpenter used in 1750 were in all essential like those recently discovered in Crete, four thousand years old. Popular government had made some advance from the days of Sargon, but it had hardly reached the standard of Athens. The Hebrews were the first to put into operation the ideas of democracy, and their stately and sublime literature still vibrates with living interest to the student of human nature, to say nothing of the living Christ who was born of this nation.

While history has recorded facts, it has not recorded the progress of the advance of government and the deeds of men. It falls far short of literature in recording the thoughts, ideals, and ambitions of the ages. The real purpose of studying literature should be to enhance the value of life. Time would fail us to enumerate the contributions of Greece, Rome, England and the Orient, to the living past, but it was largely through such contributions that our social order has come to be as it is. So, then, the task before us of making our contribution to future ages seems worth our best effort.

Clarke County Woman Assessor Wins Court Tilt

Athens, Ga., February 7.—(AP)—

Mrs. W. M. Hartman, candidate for Clarke county tax assessor in a January 12 special election, has emerged from a justice court skirmish, which she initiated, with a 15-vote margin over her nearest competitor.

But the competitor, W. M. Bryant, has not had his say, and next Monday will conduct a 10-day counter contest in an effort to lay claim to election. When the election was held, Bryant was apparently victorious with 382 votes, while Mrs. Hartman had 382. They were high candidates among nine.

Prior to the election, Attorney General Napier ruled that persons who had not paid their 1928 poll tax, cast their ballot illegally. Mrs. Hartman demanded a recount, and its results were announced yesterday in justice court, giving Mrs. Hartman 346 votes and Bryant 331, on the promise that the attorney general's ruling was erroneous.

Mrs. Hartman still has until Monday to file further names for contest, but her attorneys said they did not know whether she would do so or not.

Bryant will have his counter contest on the contention that the attorney general's ruling was proper and the original vote legal.

After the counter contest, the fact-finding justice court will submit all evidence to the superior court, which ultimately will pass on the attorney general's ruling, and include or throw out votes accordingly.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

NANNY IS WISER THAN DANNY. BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The wise know when to be afraid. And every winter, he is often in the same weeds over and over for climbing up to the surface of the snow. And having formed the habit, he became careless in the manner of climbing. At first, he would climb very cautiously. When he would reach the surface, he would first stop for a while with only his nose and eyes showing, and then he would look long and carefully to be sure that no enemy was about.

But after a while Danny became careless. If often it was that way. He became careless in matters with which we are very familiar. You know how it is yourself. If you cross a street

Danny Meadow Mouse hastened to tell Nanny Meadow Mouse that he suspected that Roulough the Hawk was keeping special watch of the places where Reddy Fox had dug in the snow after Meadow Mouse.

"We know," he explained to Nanny, "that when Reddy Fox or Mrs. Reddy or Old Man Coyote has dug down into the snow trying to catch one of us, that place has always been safe for some time afterward. None of them wastes any time watching a place where they have already dug. I believe old Roulough has found that out and now he is watching all those places dug in the snow. So we'll just keep away from them."

"That is good sense, Danny," said Nanny, "but I can tell you something that is better sense still."

"What?" demanded Danny.

"Keep away from the surface altogether," replied Nanny. "We don't have to go up there. We can get plenty to eat underneath the snow where we cannot be seen."

"But just think of all those good seeds it is so easy to get from the surface of the snow," retorted Danny. "It would be a shame not to get them while we can. We wouldn't do so far now if it were not for those seeds."

"We are too fat," declared Nanny. "Anyway, you are. If you get any fatter, you won't be able to move quickly enough to get out of the way of danger. You take my advice and keep down under the snow. That is what I am going to do."

Nanny was as good as her word. Danny couldn't induce her to go up to the surface with him. "Pooh!" said Danny. "There's no danger. As long as we go up at night, for Danny and Nanny are as active at night as in the day. You see, they believe in sleeping when you want to sleep, eat

Danny continued to go up to the surface whenever he felt like it. He had one or two favorite weeds which he climbed. Sometimes he would go up in the daytime and sometimes at night. He was as active at night as in the day. You see, they believe in sleeping when you want to sleep, eat

ELECTRIC EYES GUARD SCIENTISTS AT DINNER

New York, February 7.—(AP)—Photographers' eyes watched guests at a scientific dinner here tonight, counted them, guarded them from a fire, and substituted almost human stunts in place of speech.

The dinner was the annual meeting of the American institute of New York. On a platform for the "speakers" John V. Breisky, of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company, placed a pair of mixed gasoline and kerosene.

Beside it he set a photo-electric eye, a vacuum tube resembling an electric light globe, so sensitive to light that it registers minute changes faster than the human eye can perceive them. Attached electrically to the photo-eye was a carbon dioxide fire extinguishing apparatus, set to guard the trail of escaping liquids.

Mr. Breisky lighted a match and when it was flaming strong said: "Now watch."

He thrust it into the pan, which flared with fire, but almost as quick as the flame was the photo-electric eye, which translated the light from the pan into an electric impulse that shot the fire extinguisher over the surface.

In a split second the demonstration was over, a light puff of smoke over the pan the only reminder of the thrill.

Another photo-electric eye counted the guests, catching them as they passed through a slender beam of light. Similar "eyes" sorted packages, operating an automatic device. Whenever any package lacking a label passed before the "eye," it was yanked out of the moving procession. Color sorting was demonstrated, including that domestic problem that sometimes causes argument, known as matching colors.

BAPTIST EDITORS WILL NOT DISCUSS CARNES SENTENCE

Mobile, Ala., February 7.—(AP)—Editors of southern Baptist papers, now in session in Mobile, will not discuss the prosecution of Clinton S. Carnes, defaulting treasurer of the home mission board, and will the group make any official comment on the merits of the penalty given Carnes two days ago at Atlanta, according to an official statement issued today over the signature of Dr. P. I. Lipsey, president of the Press association, and Dr. John D. Freeman, secretary of the organization.

Earlier in the session it had been predicted by members that the Carnes case would be touched upon in connection with discussion of home mission board affairs, which was the program. Dr. Livingston Johnson, of North Carolina, who was to have discussed the mission board subject, did not come to the meeting and the statement made today said that in view of this it had been decided to omit from the program a discussion of the southern Baptist problem and to withhold any official comment on the penalty given the former treasurer.

The program as prepared has been changed considerably due to the failure of many members of the association to attend. Among the speakers this morning was Dr. J. E. Dillard, pastor of a Birmingham church.

A general discussion of methods of making church publications more interesting and a discussion of the southern Baptist church among negroes featured the first session of the editors.

Dr. O. O. Hammonds, husband of the woman secretary who was appointed state health commissioner early in Johnston's administration, denied today that he had any intention of following his wife into retirement. The health commissioner declared that the wording of Mrs. Hammonds' letter of resignation, addressed to the governor, showed that she did not retire under fire, as it was stated in local newspapers.

Chief Justice Charles W. Mason, of the state supreme court, who under constitutional provision, is slated to preside over the governor's impeachment trial, was under fire again today in the house subcommittee investigating the judiciary. B. F. Semman, Tulsa real estate operator, told the committee that employment of Wayne Bayless, Claremore, Okla., attorney, for his alleged influence over Mason, was suggested by another attorney who was representing him in a case before the supreme court.

Legislation overhauling investigation in the deliberations of both senate and house today. The house investigating committee held two brief sessions, but evidence received by the only added to previous testimony bearing on alleged irregularities in the affairs of state.

JOHNSTON'S FOES HIT RESIGNATION OF AID

Oklahoma City, Okla., February 7.—(AP)—Effect of the resignation of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds on the impeachment trial of Governor Henry S. Johnston, tonight constituted a question mark that promised to exist at least until the trial starts before the senate court next Monday. Mrs. Hammonds resigned late yesterday.

Officially, the legislature took no cognizance of the announced retirement of Mrs. Hammonds, who has performed no duties in the governor's office since Johnston was suspended January 21. Individual members of the house of representatives, however, speculated freely on the possible bearing it might have on the impeachment trial.

Little comment was forthcoming from members of the senate who will sit as judges on Johnston's trial, on the ground that their statements might be interpreted as being prejudicial. C. S. Storms, president pro tempore of the senate, said it was his personal opinion that the senate would be governed by nothing but evidence produced against the suspended governor in his trial.

Resignation Predicted. H. Tom Knight, unrelenting foe of Johnston's administration and a leading member of the house investigating committee, predicted the resignation several hours before it was made public yesterday, and warned that Mrs. Hammonds would be restored to her position if Johnston were returned to office by the senate.

E. P. Hill, committee attorney, who was defeated for democratic renomination to the house of representatives from Pittsburgh county last summer by a pro-administration opponent, issued a brief but pungent statement of comment.

"The suspended governor in his desperation to save himself has sacrificed the little woman," Hill said. "It will not appeal to the public as a very chivalrous act. It is but a repetition of the old old story: 'Eve made me eat the apple.'"

Husband To Hold On. Dr. O. O. Hammonds, husband of the woman secretary who was appointed state health commissioner early in Johnston's administration, denied today that he had any intention of following his wife into retirement. ## INSTALLMENT III.

"Where were you the night of the murder, Doctor Norton?" asked the prosecuting attorney, now a bit testy at the failure of the witness to cooperate as he had hoped in building up his case.

A smile spread over the man's face. Now it seemed he could talk about something he knew, something with which he was familiar.

"In my laboratory. I had been busy every minute finishing my map of the moon." He said it quickly, confidently, with a touch of pride in his specialty.

"Were you alone?"

"No. One of my brightest pupils was with me, Alma LaSalle, a student of whom I am proud."

"May I ask exactly what was the map on which you were working?"

At last the district attorney had discovered a subject on which Dr. Norton was not only willing, but eager, to talk. He could talk more about maps and the moon than he could about murders.

"I was completing mapping the mountains of the moon," replied the astronomer, slowly. "You see, I have published several textbooks on my work, and with Miss LaSalle's help I was completing another. Miss LaSalle and I had made many drawings within the weeks previous to that time. I have brought them along, among them that on which I was working the night of the murder." He turned unconsciously toward the table of the prosecution.

The district attorney picked up a sheet of paper. "I hand you this and ask you if you can identify it."

Norton fumbled clumsily with the drawing as it was passed to him by the prosecutor. Again his glasses needed straightening. Now he was away from talking about his beloved subject, in some way back again to this case, and his old nervousness came back again. He seemed to lose his realization at moments of just where he was—a fitting example of the absent-minded scholar.

He laid the paper on his knees, leaned forward in his chair, hands clasped nervously, and looked intently about him. "If you care, Miss LaSalle, who was in the laboratory that Saturday night of the poisoning, is here, too." His glance seemed to turn instinctively toward the faces in the vicinity of the chair which he had vacated to step up to the witness box.

Kennedy, as foreman, was watching him closely as he had watched all the witnesses. I, too, followed the doctor's glance to where two women were sitting together. One was a young girl, apparently not much past 20. I took the younger to be Miss LaSalle and I was right. As Dr. Norton mentioned her name she smiled toward the district attorney, bowed her head slightly, seemed to acquiesce in the facts as Dr. Norton had presented them.

"Is that drawing the one which you were working on the night of the murder?" The district attorney asked it kindly, getting back to the subject.

Dr. Norton picked up the paper, fumbling the edges of it, showing painfully his utter unhappiness over his ordeal.

Finally, after a nervous fluttering about the edges of the drawing paper, he managed to calm his nerves enough so that he could pass it over as a result of his work on the night that Susanna Crowe was murdered.

"I ask that be marked in evidence," concluded the prosecutor, whereupon it was, and also handed to Kennedy and the jury for their inspection and edification.

"Dr. Norton," began the district attorney again, "had you ever witnessed any friction between Susanna Crowe and Thomas Brainer?"

"Oh," he answered, easily, "wherever there is money there is friction. Where there are two strong-willed people there will be conflicts. Aunt Susanna used to quarrel. She would have nervous spells, periods of depression when she imagined every hand against her. It was a sort of inferiority complex. I think. We would call in doctors, and when the spells began to cost money she would recover quickly."

There was an audible titter in the courtroom. Even the quiet scholar could prove himself a gentle humorist. The thing that impressed me was the clever avoidance of the doctor. He had told the truth, evidently. But his reluctance to testify against Brainer had caused him to make light of the quarrels.

"Did you ever hear Thomas Brainer quarrel with his aunt?" The district attorney was not going to let him slip away so easily.

"On one occasion. That was over some investment he had advised. He told her she would regret it. Then another investment he had made turned out profitably, and a few days later she sent for him and there was a fine reconciliation. After that we were out of her good graces entirely."

"Have you ever heard of any other quarrels or threats against Susanna Crowe?" persisted the prosecutor.

"No, I have never heard any other threats."

"Do you know anything about the financial relations that existed between Susanna Crowe and Thomas Brainer? Did he owe her any money?"

"I have heard of some loans, yes. But how much I can't say."

Doctor Norton again found the question distasteful. Yet he had to tell the truth and I could see that the prosecutor was leading him on to help really convict the accused. Even by his faltering testimony Brainer had quarreled with the dead woman; the will was all in his favor; he owed her money. It was damning in its implications.

"One more question, doctor. Had Thomas Brainer the freedom of the house?"

That question, too, carried a kick. A long time he thought of it. It was as if he had been asked, "Would it be possible, from the freedom allowed him, for him to administer poison in her food or drink?" He was pressed. He must answer. "Yes," he admitted, finally. "He had the freedom of the house. He could go anywhere without suspicion."

"That will do, Doctor Norton. You're excused."

The relieved look that swept over the scientist's face was good to see. But how that questioning had weakened him! As he went to the chair beside his wife. He sat down, his glasses now off and in one hand for several minutes, the other hand over his eyes as if he shut out all unpleasant memories through which he had just passed.

Mrs. Norton's story was quite different in character. It passed without comment. She had come home from her aunt's nervous and ill at ease. Toward evening a bad headache had developed which made it impossible for her to sit up about the time of the excitement of discovering the murdered woman, a doctor had been called in attendance on Mrs. Norton.

The call from Susanna Crowe's home had been answered by the doctor himself. He had decided not to let Mrs. Norton know anything of the tragedy until the next morning.

In her testimony along similar lines to that of her husband, disclosing the unpleasant family relations, Mrs. Norton was honest, efficient, answered briefly and briskly, made a splendid witness.

There was a conference between the prosecutors and it was evidently decided not to call Alma LaSalle. Enough irrelevant testimony had been given already by the servants in the house. The case proceeded by calling a couple of expert toxicologists on the matter of cyanide found in the organs of the dead woman.

Step by step the prosecution built up its structure of circumstantial evidence against Brainer, until finally it closed with what was admittedly a strong presumption. Not the least important part in this structure in the minds of any jury. I began to realize, was the impression left by the reluctant, considerate testimony of Doctor Norton.

J. P. C. Rallies Carpentier Bout Free To Beat Aggies In Fast Battle

N. G. A. C. Leads 21 to 12 at Half; Club Comes Back to Win, 37 to 34.

By HERB CLARK.

The Pryor street cagers, playing under the name of the Jewish Progressive club, got the score of their life at the hands of Joe Hutson's team from Dahlonega, when, at the end of the first half of their basketball game at the club court last night, the score stood 21-12 in favor of the North Georgia Aggies.

The J's pulled a spurt at the opening of the second period which netted them 13 points, and, following this, they matched goal for goal with the Aggies to ease out on the long end of a 37-34 count.

The clubbers got off to an early start when D. Spillberger, backed by the rest of the team, made a 41-foot line, and Finkelstein made it four with a duplicate. And here the Aggies started. Finkelstein shot four more, four that were good, and the money, but the lads from Dahlonega had things all their own way in every department of the game. Their scoring was well divided, and it seemed as if the J's were in for an awful beating.

The rest period with its attendant conferences gave the J's a total of 13 big boost, and their 13 points were gotten without a single break for the Aggies, though Hitchcock managed to make a foul good. It was Finkelstein who led the J's in the second half, and he held it until the last couple of minutes, when the score went into a tie. Finkelstein went into a tie, and the game in the final half minutes.

Finkelstein, with a total of 16 markers, was high point man for the J's, and his all-around play was the key to the victory. He was in the key position, and he was in the key position, and he was in the key position.

Carroll, with 15 points, and Williams, with 13, drew away from their mates in the latter part of the game to annex the Aggie scoring honors, and also played a key position. Carroll and Hitchcock, the Dahlonega guards, passed well and took a big part in the running of several J. P. C. drives down the court.

This is the only autobiography written by Tex Rickard. It was prepared in collaboration with Benj. G. Miller, for publication exclusively for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance. It is a short, snappy, and to the point, and it is a short, snappy, and to the point, and it is a short, snappy, and to the point.

As I have said in a previous chapter, it is comparatively easy to get an autograph, but it is not so easy to get an autograph that is worth anything. It is not so easy to get an autograph that is worth anything. It is not so easy to get an autograph that is worth anything.

The concluding arrangements for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, which is not nearly so difficult as some of the earlier championship affairs. The main thing required was patience. I felt reasonably certain that I sooner or later would have the money. Frenchman in America. My patience was never exhausted, and it was certainly well rewarded.

The mere fact of the long delay in getting that fight gave it all the more publicity. In the minds of many, including myself, there was a doubt of Carpentier being a good match for Dempsey. Just the same I knew the money was wanted to see that fight. The international flavor overshadowed any possible weakness.

When it finally became possible for Carpentier to leave France after the war, the rest was easy. There was little difficulty in arriving at terms. Dempsey signed for $300,000, and Carpentier for $200,000.

Can you imagine how such figures would have started old John L. Sullivan in his policy days? Sullivan was fighting for a purse of half a million dollars was undreamed of then.

The money to be paid the fighters was a secondary consideration. The only thing to cause me worry of anxiety was the erection of an arena large enough to hold the crowd. There was no doubt in my mind that we had to have an arena. To have had a fight like that in an enclosed building would have meant the loss of color, of flavor. There was no ball park or other place properly arranged to hold such a fight. Obviously there was but one thing to do.

I had to use all my experience in building a bigger and better arena, and at the same time, locate it in a spot where the greatest number of people could reach it without too much trouble. The policy of the fight was a question in my mind that the scene should be somewhere in the vicinity of Greater New York. New Jersey allowed a boxing match, I turned my attention that way.

These calculations and subsequent explorations led me to the spot in Jersey City known as Boyle's Thirty Acres. Every move we made brought new sports of publicity. The fight market was absolutely tight. The fight was a very big thing, and it was a very big thing, and it was a very big thing.

Our arrangements for handling the vast crowd had to be perfect. We had to have a plan for the crowd. The police of the city regarded the matter with deep interest and growing pride. Their help was invaluable. I doubt if the public to this day fully realizes the perfection with which the fight was handled. The fight was a very big thing, and it was a very big thing, and it was a very big thing.

Ed Hamm, Georgia Tech broad-jump and sprint ace, who was to leave Atlanta Thursday for New York, where he will run the dash events sponsored by the Millrose A. C. in their annual indoor track carnival, jumped the gun here by getting away Tuesday night. Bob Young, University of Georgia distance runner, stayed within his schedule, and left Athens last night for the north.

Both the southern boys will have plenty of competition in their races. Hamm taking the mark alongside Percy Williams, the Canadian who brought the Olympic title home with him last summer, while the remainder of the field is of a class which he permit no loafing. Young will run against Nurm, Ritola and other native and foreign sons of high international ranking in the middle distance races.

Which those details were carried out. Every man on his job seemed to take a pride in his work. The result was astonishing. We handled nearly 100,000 dollars worth of goods. The thing that caused me the greatest anxiety and apprehension was the possibility of rain. You can readily imagine what might have happened had a downpour of rain set in after that great throng had been seated. Of course, if it had rained a few hours in advance we could have postponed the fight at Manhattan, N. Y.

I don't know if I was born under a lucky star, but the fact remains that I have had the greatest good fortune in the world in my big ventures when it comes to weather.

The details of all these arrangements were told over and over again to the daily papers until I felt that the average boxing fan as well as the stay-at-homes are thoroughly familiar with them. Suffice it to say that when the sun broke clear that morning of July 2 many millions were lifted from my shoulders. Nobody ever got a greater thrill than I did out of that day of good weather.

These camps had to be watched, as well as the work going on at Boyle's Thirty Acres. No hands were ever fuller than mine. The press corps was a good one. Hundreds of newspapermen were in New York, and I had to be on my toes.

Prices of wheat feeds were lower as the result of a slow demand, but concentrates and other feeds held about steady during the week ending February 7, states the Hay and Feed Market News Service of the United States bureau of agricultural economics. The hay markets were generally quiet, particularly at interior points, but feed grains were unchanged to lower.

When mill feeds were generally weak with the demand for the relatively large offerings of small volume and prices advanced lower than a month and a year ago. However, a firm tone developed at some points, and the close of the week, the market appeared strong in the northwest but weak at eastern points. Gluten feed and meal and alfalfa meal were about unchanged but hominy feed was weaker. Cotton seed cake and meal prices were about equal to those of a week and a year ago. Markets were generally quiet. Seed offerings were quoted at $8.00, an advance of 10 cents, prime basis, delivered. Foreign and domestic demand for cake and meal was quiet and offerings were light.

Hulls were selling at $14.45 per bushel, and shorts at $14.50 per bushel. The market was somewhat improved at Memphis in spite of the liberal offerings of dealers. Mill offerings, however, were light. Futures were lower and February delivery was quoted at $4.40 per ton.

With the exception of linseed and cottonseed meal prices on feeds were sharply lower at Atlanta and Birmingham. At Atlanta, shorts were $42.00 per ton, and at Birmingham, shorts were $42.00 per ton. The market was somewhat improved at Memphis in spite of the liberal offerings of dealers. New York, February 7.—Wall Street was a place of torment today for those unable to do their own straight thinking. Reading in the morning paper the federal reserve board statement on existing strained credit conditions in this country, the average trader here in Wall street arrived in the financial district before the opening of the stock market to find that the Bank of England had advanced its discount rate a full 1 percent to 5 1/2, the highest rate since 1921.

Goldman Sachs' new investment trust shares opened 17 points higher at 195 and then sank to 184 on the news of a merger with another investment trust, the Financial and Industrial Security Corporation, which would result in a combined holding of $224,000,000 with the last named closely connected with the Manufacturers Trust Company having a city-wide banking chain, total resources of all of these interests aggregating over $1,000,000,000.

But while Goldman Sachs' investment trust shares were rising, leading shares such as General Electric, Kennecott, General Electric, were opening down from 5 to 17 points. Then this uncertainty was increased by what some Wall Street bankers known to be successful had to say. In such quarters it was admitted that we were not likely to advance our discount rate because such action would offset what the Bank of England had done.

But it was added that the advance in the Bank of England rate would make money higher; that higher money rate in England would hurt business there; that higher money rate in England would hurt business there; that higher money rate in England would hurt business there.

Wondering if the roof was going to fall in the average trader here in Wall street turned to the widely used news column to find treasury officials quoted as saying: "There is little the federal reserve board can do to curb speculation."

Recess Banks Functioning. The federal reserve board points out that it neither assumed the right nor has any disposition to set itself up as an arbiter of security. It is pointed out that it is its business to see that the federal reserve banks function as effectively as conditions permit. The stock market is being supported by individuals and corporations. Efforts have been made the past year to curb speculation and these have been successful.

"The influence of investment trusts in sustaining the stock market at the present high level is seen as very great."

Mellon Not in Sympathy. Knowing that Secretary Mellon had been in conference yesterday with other federal reserve officials, to the average trader the foregoing seemed an admission that the country's financial head and recognized as a very successful banker and business man, was not in sympathy with the aggressive action of the federal reserve board to the effect that stock speculation had gone to the point where general trade was being hurt and that it was up to the federal reserve board to stop lending credit to member banks using such credit for further inflation of brokers' loans.

The average trader in the stock market was fortunate enough to have Wall Street bankers friends, some powerful Wall Street bankers might have been led to go much further in private talks in condemning the late warning of the federal reserve board.

In such quarters it was declared that the federal reserve had always stood for action that would conform with the laws of supply and demand, and that the board now proposed to curb speculation by means of a reduction of the rate of discount, which would prevent money from flowing naturally where it could find the highest wage; the federal reserve had weakened its prestige by repeatedly warning holders of long stock to get out of the market only to see stocks go higher. After the opening there was a recovery in the stock market, then another sinking spell, then another recovery adding to the uncertain frame of mind of the average reader.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

Associated Press Market Editor.

Chicago, February 7.—(AP)—Wheat traders chiefly blamed stock market weakness today for the lower prices in the corn market, higher bids from exporters led to a brisk higher, but holders' efforts to realize prices forced a reaction.

Closing quotations were nervous for wheat at 1-8c to 5-8c net decline.

Corn finished the same as yesterday higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

From the outset, wheat tended to reflect the movement of stock trading conditions, and at no stage was the wheat market more than a trifle

On the contrary, the greater part of the time a considerable drop in wheat values was apparent. Aside from sympathy with action of the stock market, less apprehension regarding facilitated of crop damage to domestic winter wheat was in evidence, snow-falling being reported in the southwest.

Expected downturns in wheat

quotations at Liverpool received considerable attention here, and were generally accounted for as resulting from an advance in British rates for money. New export buying today of wheat from North America, however, again lacked volume for this reason.

Aggressive commission house buying of corn future deliveries was a conspicuous feature at times today.

In addition to advanced prices, exporters' news was at hand that the province of Kenya, South Africa, a large corn-producing section, had prohibited exports of corn owing to drought and to fears of a famine.

Meanwhile, intimations were received of good export sales of corn from this country, the southwest in particular.

There were also reports of higher prices for corn in Europe and competition on the part of European corn demand. Oats were mainly influenced by the action of corn.

Provisions were somewhat firmer, with foreigners buying lead.

NEW YORK, February 7.—(P)—

An early decline under liquidation promoted by relatively weak cables and nervousness over action of the stock market was followed by rallies in the cotton market today on covering and trading buying. May deliveries sold up from 19.45 to 19.48, and closed at 19.47 compared with 19.45 yesterday's close. The general market closed firm at net advances of 5 to 14 points.

The market was unsettled in early trading. First, there was a decline in the cotton market. The active positions shown were 12 to 18 points under liquidation and some loss, western and Wall street selling. Uncertainty as to the effect of the federal reserve statement on speculative credits and its possible reactions on cotton, was said to be one of the factors on the decline. There also was selling on the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and the advance in the Bank of England rate.

Early offerings were readily absorbed by trade buying and covering, however. After selling off to 19.35 for March and 19.38 for the new October contracts, prices turned steadier. Failure of unsettled features in the cotton market to stimulate more general or aggressive selling, apparently made a favorable impression on sentiment as to the technical position of the market. This was reflected in covering or rebuying by some of the earlier sellers in the afternoon.

Some buying also was reported on the theory that restriction of credit for speculative purposes might make it easier to finance commodities and so prove a bullish factor on cotton in the long run. The early buying was attributed to the trade and was believed to include some price fixing for southern and Canadian mills. March liquidation closed with March at 19.47, a slight widening of the difference. March closed 10 points yesterday.

Private cables from London and Manchester liquidation influenced by the higher Bank of England rate in Liverpool. Manchester advances reported an improved home demand for cotton cloths but said yarns were pressing for sale. Exports today 33,597, making 5,839,165 this season. Port stocks 2,169,435.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET

STRONGER AFTER OPENING.

New Orleans, February 7.—(P)—After opening 13 to 14 points up, early trading in the cotton market strengthened later today under a demand stimulated by the theory that commodities would be aided by the federal reserve liquidation. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 5 to 7 points.

The market opened in sympathy with a decline in the cotton market as due to the increase in the Bank of England's discount rate. First trades showed a decline in the cotton market and the market continued to sag in early trading due to the slump in stocks. March traded off to 19.40, May 19.45 and July 19.47, or 13 to 14 points net.

HAVANA FISHERMEN FIND OLD CANNON AND MUCH GOLD

Havana, February 7.—(AP)—Four fishermen drowsing about the beach near Batabano, Cuba, Tuesday excavated four old cannon, in the muzzles of which they found ancient Spanish doubloons, pieces of gold and rare old jewelry of an estimated value of $50,000. One of the cannon bore the date of 1687.

Cuban law provides that a large part of such treasure when found shall be used to enrich the national coffers. However, Castellanos Mena, congressman from Batabano, who brought the story of the discovery to Havana, is endeavoring to have the fishermen rewarded with a big share of their find.

He believes it to be an old pirate cache.
